OUR 55TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1965 | NUMBER 238

Four Orphans Entertained

There are four little visitors in Sikeston, who until a few months ago, were almost entirely neglected by their parents.

The four Hudgins children, Kenny, 7, Andy, 5, Alice, 3, and Dale, 2, live at the Childrens Home in Paragould, Ark.

When custody of the children was gained from their parents, they were suffering from malnutrition, body sores, infected ears, and ring worms.

None of the children could utter a word that was distinguishable to their new playmates. They had had no opportunity to mingle with other children.

Kenneth, the oldest boy, still has a speech defect, but they may soon lose it.

Their new lease on life came about when merchants of the Arkansas city together with members of the Church of Christ, built four cottages to house neglected children. The cottages now house 51 children with each cottage having a married couple to look after the children.

The four orphans in Sikeston were given a two weeks vacation by their Sikeston benefactors, who have visited the Childrens Home, and have assisted in their support.

Their benefactors and hosts during their visit are members of the Northside Church of Christ.

Several organizations of the church are sponsoring the children, supplying clothing and other needs. Women of the church came to the Ervie McMillen home, 1206 Ruth St., to be with the children and to keep them in a cheerful mood. Members of the Southside Church of Christ have given Christmas toys to the Childrens Home.

Each child has a sponsor while on his vacation in sikeston. Alice is with Mr. and Mrs. McMillen; Kenny, with Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Miller; Dale, with Mr. and Mrs. Pete Burns, and Andy, with Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Horne.

More Flu Predicted

WASHINGTON AP -- A Public Health Service advisory committee predicted today there probably will be an increased number of influenza cases in the coming winter season.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry announced the committee's recommendation for vaccination of persons in groups which experience high mortality from epidemic influenza.

The Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices noted that influenza incidence in the United States during 1964-65 was relatively limited. The last major epidemic of Type A influenza occurred in 1962-63 in most of the country and in 1963-64 on the West Coast.

The committee urged that persons in the following groups be vaccinated against influenza: Those suffering from chronic debilitating diseases, older persons, pregnant women and patients in nursing homes and other environments in which crowded living arrangements may lead to a more rapid spread of the disease.

Planes Pound Dien Bien Phu

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- U. S. Air Force planes pounded the airfield and barracks in North Viet Nam's Dien Bien Phu today, site of the decisive French defeat in the Indochina war.

South of the border, government troops killed 120 Viet Cong and captured eight others in three ground operations, a U. S. military spokesman reported.

Communists mortars hit two air strips with mortar fire during the night. U. S. spokesman said three helicopters were damaged at Cheo Reo, 220 miles northeast of Saigon, and another helicopter crashed due to mechanical failure after it took off during the attack on the Soc Trang strip, 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

U. S. spokesmen said a total of 30 planes pounded the targets at Dien Bien Phu, about 185 miles west northwest of Hanoi. They said no antiaircraft fire was encountered over the scene of the bitter 1954 fighting and no enemy planes were sighted.

Hear Signals From Space

BOCHUM, Germany AP -- The Bochum Observatory reported today hearing signals from what it believes is a "large Soviet space experiment." It said that apparently two space craft or satellites were in orbit close together.

The observatory said that after noting the second orbit of the craft it still was not able to say if the experiment was manned or unmanned.

The observatory director, Heinz Kaminski, said the signals varied from those normally picked up from Russia's unmanned Cosmos satellite series.

He said that on the first orbit, snatches of conversation were heard but it was unclear whether they came from a ground station or aloft.

Tiros 10 Circles Earth

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP -- The Tiros 10 weather satellite circled the globe today, its camera eyes ready to record the birth and movement of hurricanes, typhoons and other storms over a great area of the globe.

The mechanical meteorologist, launched late Thursday night, joined three other operating Tiros satellites -- nos. 7, 8 and 9--on space patrol. The quartet could provide the most comprehensive photographic coverage yet of a full season of tropical storms.

Tiros 10 is the first of the series paid for by the U. S. Weather Bureau and is the forerunner of an operational system the bureau plans to begin launching early in 1966.

The previous nine Tiros satellites, all successful, were financed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Although classed as research vehicles, many of the more than half a million pictures they have produced were used in operational weather channels around the world.

Tiros 10 rode into space atop a Delta rocket that roared off its launching pad Thursday night and blazed into a dark Florida sky. The Douglas Delta, recording its 30th satellite success in 32 launchings, hurled the 290-pound payload into a north-south orbit more than 400 miles above the earth.

New Jacket For Day Book

WASHINGTON AP -- The book former Postmaster General J. Edward Day wrote is getting a new jacket.

When early copies of the book, "My Appointed Round: 929 Days as Postmaster General." appeared here, it was immediately noted that the dust jacket was decorated with color photographs of U. S. airmail stamps. The law forbids such color reproductions, and the maximum penalty for violation is 15 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

So Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the New York publisher, has ordered booksellers to destroy the dust jacket. They're ordering a new one. The publication date is July 8.

Smaller business firms account for four more buildings, and at least 20 homes are being built by individuals or real estate firms, Connor said.

He estimated the total cost of the homes at a minimum $200,000.

Police said the congressman and Patrolman J. C. Goodwin were standing between their cars when the truck, driven by Norman Turner, 53, of Westville, N. J., apparently sideswiped the patrol car and slammed into the left rear of Thompson's 1965 Cadillac.

Defends Remap Plan

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Threatened by possible court action, the Missouri House redistricting plan is being defended by its chief sponsor.

Rep. Norbert Jasper, D-Franklin county, told the Associated Press the plan had "a better than equal chance" of standing up in court. Jasper was chairman of the House committee that drafted the plan later passed by the legislature.

It maps out 168 representative districts based on population. Last year a federal district court ruled out the present system of giving at least one representative to each county, regardless of population.

A constitutional objection to the plan was filed by state Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R - Clayton, soon after the legislature adjourned early Thursday. Jones predicted a quick court test.

Jasper cited data showing that 48.1 per cent of the state's population live within the minimum number of new districts needed to elect a majority of House members. The data, he said, supplied by political sceintists from the University of Missouri.

Federal courts, he said, pay particular attention to the minimum number of residents that can elect a majority. He quoted U. S. Solicitor General Archibald Cox as saying the courts probably would accept a plan under which at least 46 per cent could elect a majority.

Jasper conceded that one of the new districts might be considered a gerrymander. That district begins at the Iowa line and stretches south more than 50 miles, covering Worth and Gentry counties and a narrow panhandle leading into St. Joseph.

He said he wouldn't object to a "friendly" suit to test the measure.

Sen. John J. Johnson, D-St. Souis County, said he would file an objection also.

Largest district in the state is Stoddard County, 14.7 per cent above the average population of 25,713. The smallest is Randolph County, 14 per cent below average.

Not Worried About Rapids

ELK SPRINGS, Colo. AP -- Don Hatch, the veteran river runner who leads the Sen. Robert F. Kennedy party down the Yampa and Green Rivers along the Utah-Colorado border today, says he isn't worried about the river rapids.

The Kennedy family, including wife Ethel and five of the couple's nine children, flew to Vernal, Utah, Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. James Whittaker and their two sons.

Whittaker was with Kennedy when he became the first person to ascend Mt. Kennedy in Canada. Whittaker, of Seattle, Wash., was the first American to climb Mt. Everest.

Hatch, 37, is a school teacher who has been running the rivers since childhood. He will command the three 27-foot rubber rafts the party will use in the 83-mile journey.

The party travels from Lily Park on the Yampa River in northwestern Colorado to Dinosaur Quarry on the Green River in eastern Utah.

Thousands Expected to Tour Independence Hall

PHILADELPHIA AP -- Thousands are expected this weekend to tour the old, red brick building on Philadelphia's Chestnut Street where the Declaration of Independence was signed 189 years ago.

They will be among the more than two million persons who annually visit Independence Hall, including tourists from all states and many countries. Heads of state and presidents periodically visit it.

Set in the brick countyard beside a statue of George Washington are two plaques, marking where Abraham Lincoln stood in 1861 and John F. Kennedy stood in 1962 during visits.

U. S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach will be the principal speaker at Monday's ceremonies, commemorating the activites of that steamy summer in 1776.

Independence Hall was originally built in the early 1730s to house Pennsylvania's General Assembly.

When originally built, the structure had no bell tower. One was added later, torn down, then restored. In it was hung 1753 the state house bell now known as the Liberty Bell.

The bell is now housed in the hall, forever muted by a huge crack.

Pope Invited To UN

VATICAN CITY AP -- The Vatican press office announced today that U. N. Secretary General U Thant has invited Pope Paul VI to the United Nations but added that it was too soon to say whether the pontiff would accept.

However, the unusual Vatican announcement, breaking a silence here on frequent reports about such a trip, suggested the Roman Catholic ruler has the trip under consideration.

Vatican sources said he well may make the transatlantic voyage, adding that he apparently is inclined toward accepting--or the Vatican press office would hardly have made an announcement, with the risks of possible disappointment should he decline the invitation.

Vatican sources said there was no indication whether the Pope would visit other places in the United States or would see President Johnson.

The Vatican press office statement was carried as a note in the Vatican newspaper the L'Osservatore Romano.

1st Calvary Colors Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — The colors of the historic 1st Cavalry Division have returned to the United States from the Far East after 22 years and two wars.

Those colors haven't been home since the vanguard of the division left the United States in May 1943 to fight the Japanese in the Pacific.

The 1st Cavalry's flag — decorated with streamers for distinguished service in World War II and Korea — will be handed to the Army's newest type "airmobile" division in a ceremony Saturday at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Thus, the Airmobile Division —designed to ride to battle aboard a fleet of more than 400 helicopters — will inherit a tradition dating back to the horse soldiers of Robert E. Lee and George Armstrong Custer.

At the same time, the colors of the 2nd Infantry Division will be transferred to Korea, to replace those of the 1st Cavalry. There will be no shift in manpower.

Although called cavalry, the 1st has been essentially an infantry division for nearly a quarter of a century.

Car Victim Was Student

It was William W. Shuffield, 20, Tacoma, Wash., a student at Logan College in St. Louis county, who was killed in a collision with a truck on highway 67, north of Poplar Bluff Thursday morning. He was first identified as a resident of Normandy.

Highway accidents reported in the area by the highway patrol during the last 24 hours included the following:

Two miles west of Morehouse on highway 60 at 4:15 p.m. yesterday, a 1963 Oldsmobile driven by Lawrence Beck, 43, Henderson, Ky., was pulling out from a side road when a 1964 International pickup truck, driven by Junior Pyle, 20, route one, Essex, was passing. Beck applied his brakes, the car went over the shoulder into a ditch and overturned. He was not injured.

A parked car which ran out of gas, resulted in three persons being taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, last night at 8:30 p.m. The accident occurred on route D three miles west of Lilbourn, when Henry Redman, 25, Lilbourn, ran out of gas and left his 1957 Studebaker parked in the east bound lane with the lights off.

A 1957 Pontiac, driven by Melvin Simmons, 19, Catron, was traveling east on the road and was blinded by the lights of an approaching car, when he ran into the stalled car. A passenger in Redman's car who was injured was Hught Payne, 14, Lilbourn, who received cuts on the right cheek. Injured in the Simmons car were Eddie Eaton, 15, Catron, who received a nose injury, and Bobby Miller, 11, route one, Lilbourn, who received cuts on the lower lip and chin.

Redman was arrested for improper parking, improper registration and no operator's license.

The Daily Sikeston Standard

C. L. RLANTON, Jr., Managing Editor, Entered at the Postoffice of Sikeston, Scott County, Missouri as Second Class Mail Matter according to Act of Congress March 3, 1879, Saturday, February 4th, 1960.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Friday, July 2 Peter Sthrone goes to sleep in a tub of vaseline and wakes up oily next morning.

* * *

Traffic lights in the business section of Sikeston switch on at 7 a.m. This isn't early enough.

The density of traffic between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. appears to be heavy enough to justify switching on the stop and go signals at 5 a.m. or perhaps earlier.

City officials needn't take our word for it or do they have to resort to their own opinions or observations.

It should be easy to undertake a traffic study to determine the need -- if one exists scientifically.

Early morning traffic is particularly heavy on Malone Avenue and at its intersections with Kingshighway and New Madrid streets. There may be other bottlenecks.

In the absence of traffic lights, motorists on Malone speed through these intersections as if they had the right-of-way and maybe by custom they do.

This makes entering Malone hazardous for motorists on Kingshighway and New Madrid. They cannot depend on cars traveling on Malone to slow down or stop at intervals to let them through.

Waits occasionally are necessary. As far as pedestrians are concerned it is a bad time to be crossing the street with both through and turning traffic attempting to move rapidly through the intersections.

The stop and go lights provide both motorists and pedestrians with some protection and discipline and encourage a better paced and more orderly flow of vehicle traffic. Those who become accustomed to them discover that they miss them when they aren't in operation.

Other Sikeston streets by custom have become through streets. One of these is Murray Lane. A motorist entering Murray Lane had better stop first unless he wants to endanger himself and his vehicle.

Since motorists on Murray Lane take the right-of-way, stationary stop or yield signs should be placed at all intersections as a safety measure.

There probably are other streets in this same category. A traffic survey would reveal these and other hazards and corrective measures could be taken.

Local driving customs are difficult if not impossible for a city's visitor or newcomer to interpret readily.

Everything should be spelled out for him in adequate signs written in clear, understandable English and big enough for him to read at a glance.

THE INJURIOUS FOURTH

"Cracker balls" are fireworks that look so much like candy that children are tempted to bite into them. When the crackers explode they inflict bad mouth burns. The U. S. Food and Drug Administration in late June filed suit in federal court in Baltimore against distribution of 48 cases of these deceptive firecrackers found at a plant in Elkton, Md.

This is just another reminder that bootlegging of firecrackers is big business, despite state and federal laws. The sale and use of fireworks are restricted in 28 states to authorized public displays, and almost every state polices sale of fireworks in some fashion. Public Law 385, adopted by Congress in 1954, supports the state legislation by prohibiting the transportation of fireworks into states where their sale is illegal, much as federal law forbids shipment of liquor into a state which is legally dry.

But the Senate Junvenile Delinquency subcommittee in hearings two years ago developed major abuses in what the chairman, Sen. Thomas A. Dodd (D Conn.), described as a multi-million dollar industry. One manufacturer in Maryland did a more than $500,000-a-year business in making plastic cherry bombs. Subcommittee tests were said to prove that these bombs are capable of shattering a man's skull or blowing off a man's fingers.

Traffic in fireworks is aided by legal idiosyncracies. Maryland does forbid the sale but not the manufacture of fireworks, for example. A Baltimore fire marshal told the subcommittee two years ago of a stand owner on the District of Columbia side of the District-Maryland line who netted $3000 in two days of pre-Fourth of July sales.

The Fourth, on the strength of recent legislation, is a good deal saner than it used to be, but it's a long way from being perfectly safe.

FARM SAFETY MEANS SUCCESS

That old phrase, "Oh, for the peace and quiet of the country," is probably used often in today's busy world, but a second look might show that the farm isn't always so peaceful.

One sure way to convince yourself it isn't is to take a long look at the accident tolls: an estimated 8,400 deaths and 780,000 injuries to farm residents last year, according to the National Safety Council.

Sounds a little incredible? Well, it's not. Each day many farmers work in the fields or in the barn, and suddenly somehow, sometime during the workday are injured or killed. Not only can an injury disrupt one or two workdays, but a permanent injury or death can totally change an entire farm or farm family.

The farm picture is constantly changing. With new machinery, chemicals and methods, it is a challenge to learn how to utilize them all safely. Unless you carry this new knowledge through in everyday practice, you are not fulfilling your responsibility to yourself and your family. You might, for example, know everything about a machine, but allow a boy barely able to reach the controls to handle a tractor.

What can safe farming mean to you? Success.

THE LUSH AND LAZY SEASON

Summer, the lush and lazy season, is here. The date-line on this page clearly shows that, and it is confirmed by the thermometer. Not only youthful poets, dreaming by haunted streams, praise the joy and beauty that the season brings. After ample rain, the foliage on trees and shrubs is lush. Birds are cheerful on the boughs. Flowers--day lilies, feverfew, yarrow, daisies, buttercups--are bright as Joseph's coat and rich in the promise of more to bloom. The grass is thick and soft as velvet and green as emerald. Ozark streams are running fast, lacy around the rocks and placid in the deep holes. Beside the pool, the sun is tanning warm. Oh, the season's lush from the beginning. But lazy?

Keeping all that foliage within bounds already has taken hours and hours of work with saw and pruning shears. The splendor of the flowers cost more hours of weeding, cultivating and spraying. And it has been necessary to mow the lawn almost every other day. As for getting to the Current or Eleven Point, highway driving is not for the lazy. It's rough even to get to and from the ball park. As for tan, don't forget the grease; and who cleans the pool? Just as Mr. Emerson said a long time ago: "Do what we can, summer will have its flies. If we walk in the woods, we must feed mosquitoes."

But for those who would not surrender--at least not so early--the dream of a season of languor, to New England fact-finding, there is verse enough about skies darkly blue, and days still and bright. And there's Henry James saying to Edith Wharton: "Summer afternoon--summer afternoon; to me those always have been the two most beautiful words in the English language."

FAMILY OF JUMPERS

There are at least fifty kinds of kangaroos, and they vary in size from about six inches to six feet. The largest of them can travel at the rate of forty miles an hour and cover twenty feet in one jump.

The term "Country Style" can be used only to describe ham which has been rubbed with a cure mixture containing salt and sugar, and placed in a container for at least 60 days, explain meat inspectors. This produces meat that is quite firm and has a dry appearance on the cut surface.

A WORTHWHILE JOB

Each year the American Meat Institute presents its Vesta Awards to editors of outstanding newspaper food pages. This year five of these editors took the honors. They represented newspapers published in small cities and large. Each editor was given a statutte of Vesta, mythological goddess of hearth and home. The judges were leading authorities in fields including home economics and nutrition.

The awards represent a thoroughly deserved recognition of important journalistic work, The food editor is permanently concerned with down-to-earth reader service. His function is to evalue and present new ideas and new variants on the old. Just about every housewife is constantly in search of better, more attractive ways to feed the family. And the newspaper, along with her row of cookbooks, is an invaluable aid.

More than that, the good food editor helps advance the standards of public health. In late years there have been recurrent waves of food faddism which, in the view of nutritional scientists and the medical fraternity, are a menace to mental and physical well-being. The food editor knows that the health-building diet, as well as the most succulent diet, consists of age-old elements -- meats, fruits, grains, vegetables, and the rest, each in proper proportion. His job -- and a highly worthwhile job it is -- is to show the reader how a sound diet can be followed, day after day, in virtually limitless variety.

MINORITY GROUPS, THE FIRST VICTIMS

There is a growing awareness in the United States that minority groups are the first victims in any country where communism takes over. The latest example of this awareness is the call by Jewish leaders to mobilize opinion in behalf of Jews being persecuted in the Soviet Union. The harsh anti-Semitism practiced by communist leaders is a fact of life in Russia today.

The persecution of three million Soviet Jews has aroused Jewish leaders to seek equal religious rights for Russian Jews.

Other minorities in communist countries have also felt the hard lash of communist tyranny. The Christian missionaries and many converts in China suffered great hardships from the time the communists took over that country. In recent months, African students in communist countries in Europe have been discriminated against; denied the right of protest; and even held in custody while wishing to return to their homes.

The truth is that communism cannot afford to let minority groups go about their own business. The communist bosses know that a member of a minority group is by the very nature of things almost certain to be an individualist. If there is anything communism cannot allow, it is individualism.

By contrast, the United States is traditionally a nation which protects the rights of minority groups. The American Polish community is an integral part of American life. Years ago Irish immigrants came to America in great numbers. They made their way by hard work and took full advantage of the opportunities offered in our growing country. The Irish, Germans, Poles and people of all nationalities and faiths fill important posts in our government and industry. Our system is not perfect, but it does offer the maximum opportunity for each and every individual -- minorities included.

The reverse, of course, is true regarding communism. The communist persecute the labor force while claiming that communism is the only true friend of the working man. The Communist Manifesto lays down the law that communists have no interests separate and apart from the interests of the working class.

This propaganda has fooled self - styled intellectuals in this country. But the effort to sell communism to American labor has failed. Organized labor as a whole is strongly anticommunist. The reasons for this are easy to find. In Soviet Russia, Red China, Cuba and other communist nations, laborers have lost rights which are often taken for granted in the United States. Workers in those nations cannot bargain about wage rates and working conditions. As a general rule, they are forbidden to strike. When a strike does occur it is staged either for show purposes, or it is quickly put down -- bloodily if need be.

This has been proved again and again. The most recent proof has come from Cuba long after Fidel Castro called himself the "friend of the working man."

Soon after Castro's takeover, anti-freedom groups officially headed by Fidel's brother, Raul, seized power and control over the Cuban Labor Federation in the face of opposition from the union's rank-and-file membership. A law was passed giving the Cuban Minister of Labor the power to take control of any local or national union and to remove any union official from office. Naturally, Raul Castro also has the power to name the replacements.

The right to strike was abolished. The Minister of Labor was given absolute control over all jobs in Cuba. Workers are now required to fill out a long questionaire giving the police full information about political and religious beliefs, property and financial status, and the names of relatives in Cuba and abroad.

All wages were frozen. A decree was signed stating that "all pay raises or any variation in the wage scale without the knowledge and approval of the Labor Ministry will be null and void." There are stiff penalties for being absent from work. Vacation time has been curtailed, and workers can be transferred from one job to another without their consent. Any worker who is late or who leaves his job early three times in a row can be fined one-half day's pay. Six late arrivals or early departures result in loss of a full day's pay.

Fringe benefits so common in the United States are unknown in Cuba. On the contrary, Cuban workers are called on to make "voluntary" contributions averaging 17 per cent of their monthly earnings for such projects as government industrialization and the purchase of arms as a defense against "Yankee imperialism." In addition, "union" leaders who took over after the Castro seizure of power are continually urging workers to make even more "contributions" for such undertakings as the purchase of cattle for farm cooperatives and the building of a long-promised, but still visionary university.

This is the way communism treats its own citizens. By its own actions regarding minority groups, communism has defined itself as the antithesis of freedom.

H. L. Hunt Says

NATIONAL HOLIDAYS

No other nation has so splendid a heritage as America. Few other nations now do so little to celebrate and honor their heritage.

This is most obvious when we see and think about what has happened to our national holidays. Older Americans can vividly remember when all were celebrated in the most impressive manner in every community, and each was a great event in the lives of the people.

On Memorial Day, people gathered in large numbers to honor our heroic dead. On Independence Day, they took nearly the whole day and evening to celebrate the winning of our national independence. On Thanksgiving Day, they really did give thanks.

On Columbus Day and on the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, these great men were remembered in terms befitting their imperishable fame.

Now the birthdays of these great men have virtually ceased to exist as holidays, and the others, especially Memorial Day and Independence Day, are known primarily as the occasion for a "holiday weekend" when great numbers of people rush out on the highways and are killed or injured.

The real meaning of our national holidays is fading into mist. Only Christams, the holiday of all Western Christian civilization, still retains much of its old special magic.

America is immeasurably the poorer for this destructive trend. We ought to be proud of our heritage. Many of us still are proud. By celebrating our national holidays in the old way, we would show our pride and pass it on to our children. HLH

QUI NHON, Viet Nam (AP) —Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

This is a city under enemy siege where no American is pushing the panic button.

It is a city haunted by bitter memories and by many refugees. War, the orphan maker, orphans many here daily.

The bitter memories stem from the terrorist bombing last Feb. 10 of the Hotel Viet Cua. Viet Cong agents blew up the four-story building, then being used to quarter enlisted men of an aviation maintenance company. Some 23 Americans were among the 37 killed.

"We worked for 70 hours straight before others arrived to help us," said a survivor. "We had to level the building to get everybody out."

No trace of the hotel now exists. Its site is used as a truck parking lot, and newcomers here pass it by unheeding. But hose who were here then still carry memory scars.

There is only one really safe direction in this key city in the central Vietnamese lowlands between Saigon and Da Nang. That is seaward, for we still control its watery access.

But the area westward from here to Pleiku and the Cambodian and Laotian borders is a heartland of Viet Cong activity. Military leaders worry about the possibility that the enemy might try to snip the country in two along this axis in a dare-all gamble.

Qui Nhon, rebuilt since it was razed and looted in 1945, is a neat-looking city of French colonial design. Its streets are wide and well kept.

But it has become a city of tragedy and mass misery. Refugees flocking in for safety from outlying villages have nearly doubled its normal population of 50,000.

Its plight only reflects the situation throughout the province of Binh Dinh, which is the second largest of South Viet Nam's 44 provinces, and its most populous area with the exception of Saigon.

A large percentage of the refugees are Roman Catholics and strongly anti-Communist. Most have chosen to uproot their lives and flee here rather than cooperate with the guerrillas in their native villages.

The refugees are huddled in 25 camps throughout the province. One of the seven camps here houses 10,000 homeless men, women and children.

They dwell behind barbed wire in abject conditions. They are fed and given what clothing is available and about five cents a day each to care for their other needs. Disease flourishes.

A tale to be taken with a grain of salt:

Millions of propaganda leaflets have been dropped in enemy territory in hope of spreading disunity in the ranks of the Viet Cong.

One defector turned up carrying a bundle of the leaflets.

A psychological warfare officer questioned him as to whether his mind had been swayed by the leaflets.

"No, I can't read or write," said the defector. "My commander ordered me to go around and pick up all these pieces of paper — and I just got tired of doing it."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — A lobbying battle of great interest to housewives is now being waged over the future price of bread. It will also affect over a million farmers.

About 50 big baking companies, plus two baking unions, have retained as their lobbyist Maurice Rosenblatt, mainspring of the Committee for an Effective Congress, who has raised thousands of dollars to elect new congressmen. He has helped finance some of the most crusading liberals in Congress. Naturally they feel under obligation to him.

However, Rosenblatt is now working to defeat the Johnson Administration's farm bill as the registered lobbyist for such giants of the baking-biscuit world as National Biscuit, Continental Baking, Ralston-Purina, United Biscuit, Pillsbury Flour, Sunshine Biscuits, Kellogg, General Baking, Interstate Baking, the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union, Confectionery Workers International, and about 40 other companies associated with the baking industry.

Rosenblatt, an able young man who has led many important battles for the public interest, makes no secret of his campaign to defeat the Johnson farm bill.

"I am the registered lobbyist for the Wheat Users Committee," he says. "I am not wearing my hat as a member of the Committee for an Effective Congress. I cleared my work, however, with the Committee."

—DIAMONDS IS BREAD—

At issue is Rosenblatt's and the big baking comapnies' claim that the new farm bill will cost the housewife two cents a loaf more for bread. And some congressmen are raising their eyebrows at the political repercussions if they vote to decrease the price of diamonds and the cost of country club dues by removing excise taxes, then turn around and increase the price of bread.

Agricultural officials, however, deny that the farm bill will increase the price of bread more than 7-10 of one cent and claim this can and should be absorbed by the millers and bakers.

The farmer, argues the Department of Agriculture, has been getting it in the neck from the middlemen, in this case the bakers and millers, for years. And officials produce some rather convincing figures to prove it.

In the past 15 to 18 years the cost of flour on the farm has not increased. Bakers can still buy wheat on the farm for the same price today as they paid in the late 1940's. But over the same period, the cost of a loaf of bread to the housewife has about doubled. It's gone up from 13.5 cents to 21 to 31 cents.

In brief, the millers, the bakers, and the bakers unions have almost doubled their share of the cost of bread, while the farmer receives exactly the same amount.

—SQUEEZE ON SMALL FARMER—

Meanwhile the cost of farm labor has gone up at least 50 per cent while the cost of tractors, other farm machinery has almost doubled.

Accordingly, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has argued that it's time for both the farm middleman and labor to loosen up their take and pass a part of their profit on to the farmer. Instead, the big bakers' lobby, headed by Rosenblatt, wants to pass not merely 7-10 of one cent on to the housewife, but more than double that amount — namely, two cents, on the cost of a loaf of bread.

The new farm bill would give farmers a price of 100 per cent of parity on domestic wheat, through a certificate plan whereby part of the support price would be paid by the millers and wheat users. Hence the howl by the millers and their retention of lobbyist Rosenblatt.

The bill is geared to help the small family firms, most of which raise about 15 acres of wheat as a small cash crop. If the farm bill fails, more and more family farms will go to the wall and wheat raising will be concentrated in the hands of a few thousand factory-type farms.

—IRON-HANDED CONGRESSMAN—

There was an ironic and inaccurate aftermath to the big fund-raising dinner which President Johnson addressed last month.

His main message was of praise for the 89th Congress. But when the local headlines came out back in Youngstown, Ohio, they made it appear that the President was praising 79-year-old Rep. Mike Kirwan, the Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, who heads the Committee for the Reelection of Democratic Congressmen.

He did nothing of the kind.

This recalls an interesting bit of history. It was Lyndon Johnson, as a young congressman from Texas, who took hold of the Democratic Congressional Committee in 1940 and really made it zing. Before that, Rep. Pat Drewry of Virginia had been a charming, complacent chairman.

When Johnson took over in the presidential elections of 1940, he showed what could be done by raising money for congressmen in election trouble. And when Lyndon turned to other things, including the Navy, Kirwan took over the committee and has ruled it with an iron and selfish hand ever since. If you vote for Kirwan's bills, including his famous $10,000,000 fish aquarium, he'll allocate campaign funds to help your election. If you don't, you starve for campaign funds.

Inside Labor

Johnson, at Unique, Off-the-Record White House Dinner, Hears Nation's 'Civilian' Leaders Predict Prosperous Years.

Washington, D. C. -- President Johnson ran a reverse teach-in dinner the other night. It was unique right down to the grape cheese. It was full of surprises, but went unreported, though the State dining room was filled with many of the nation's most influential men.

The guests ranged all the way from Socialist A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, to the staid Roger Blough, chairman of the board of U. S. Steel. All agreed the U. S. was a fine place to live in, and the dollar was sound, and this land is winning the battle of the balance of payments -- meaning we're now beginning to pour less money into the world and getting back more than in the past.

What made the filet of beef banquet unique was Mr. Johnson's new technique in getting the men to stand up and tell him bluntly what they had on their minds.

As each of the 60 business and labor leaders left the cocktail room for the dinner hall, they drew numbers and their seats. There were ten tables, each with ten chairs.

At each table in addition to some member of the Cabinet or vital federal bureau, was a bright young chap out of one of the government services. He was the host. Sort of a table social director to make certain the men of industry and the chiefs of labor got around to a first-name basis.

As they were seated, a waiter came around to each table with a bowl. In it were ten slips. This was as gingerly handled as though it were a bottle of Marquis de Montesque Armagnac. On one of the slips there appeared the word "Speaker." On the other nine was written "Writer."

Thus no one knew in advance what his role was to be. The guest who drew the "speaker" slip was expected to rise and shine -- with any comment on or critique of the domestic economy or any suggestions for keeping the prosperity and swinging the balance of payments in America's favor.

The nine at each table who drew the "writer" slips were asked to send their thoughts and proposals along to the President, on paper, after they returned home.

But the speakers had to hold their fire until they had heard the President, Secretary of the Treasury Fowler, Secy. of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secy. of Commerce Connor, and a string of other specialists tell them that now the basic domestic issue is cutting down the money this country is pouring out into the world and getting more back in.

Some of those who were there for the off-the-record stag dinner that night, June 22, talked of the session as a blend of evangelism, teach-in-ism and fraternalism among men who sometimes do battle on the nation's social and political fronts.

There was the moment when A. Philip Randolph, veteran Negro leader, arose, "speaker" slip in hand. Rarely if ever has "Phil" Randolph unleashed a speech in his sonorous voice -- especially in front of American Presidents -- without reference to the civil rights revolution. Yet that night, for the first time in over 50 years, he put aside the struggle of his people.

He urged the President to give strong financial support to the nation's railroads. He spoke of the need for revitalizing them with federal aid. Eloquently, the head of the Sleeping Car Porters talked of the imagination and daring the early railroad builders had shown in spanning the land. Now he said the time had come for the government to help them survive.

He was followed by husky, blond, Viking - like Paul Hall, leader of the Seafarers International Union. Hall told the President bluntly that some of the government officials were breaking a pledge which Mr. Johnson himself had given when the labor people agreed to load wheat on ships for Russia.

Mr. Johnson had promised that 50 per cent of the shipment would be dispatched in America freighters. Now some presidential advisers were urging that Russia be permitted to buy wheat here and have it shipped in rate-cutting foreign vessels, beyond the 50-50 agreement, just to lower the cost to the U.S.S.R. The President made a note.

Another speaker rose. He was Henry Ford. He had just returned from Europe. The dollar was sound, he had found. The country was sound. And so it went.

All agreed that voluntary action had closed the floodgates on the outflow of American money. And that things would get better despite the war in Asia.

The President got his consensus on the home front -- general agreement that prosperous years were ahead.

Miss Sandra Suggett Feted With Pre-Nuptial Parties

The glow of soft candlelight accented the tastefully appointed ball room of the Country Club recently where Miss Sandra Suggett of Jefferson City was honored with a tea.

Mrs. Max Chandler was hostess for the tea given in honor of Miss Suggett, who is the bride - elect of Charles Chandler.

The wedding will take place August 14 in Jefferson City.

A receiving line was formed in front of a white scroll wrought iron screen, decorated with sea green mimosa as Mrs. Chandler introduced Miss Suggett and her mother, Mrs. E. D. Suggett to the many guests present.

Miss Suggett was becomingly attired in an original white raw silk dress. A contrasting sherbert pink trim and pink shoes completed the costume. She wore a wrist corsage of daisies. Mrs. Chandler and Mrs. Suggett completed their becoming ensembles with shoulder corsages of daisies.

The honoree's chosen colors of white and yellow were predominate throughout the ball room. The daisy has been selected by the bride-elect as her favorite flower.

The tea table was overlaid with a hand embroidered French linen cloth. The centerpiece was composed of English white daisies and stephanotis in a silver bowl flanked by burning yellow tapers in silver candelabra.

Guests were served tea sandwiches, mints and petit-fours. The following friends presided at the embossed silver punch bowl and silver service: Linda Jarvis, Sarah Reid, Melinda Bucher and Jane Ella Yount.

Miss Kay Sargent was in charge of the guest book. Miss Claudia Mulcahy, Miss Jo Ann Williamson and Miss Valerie Chandler, daughter of the hostess, assisted with serving.

Miss Jeanie Winters, a talented high school vocalist entertained the guests by singing two songs dedicated to the bride-elect. Her numbers were "More" and "If I loved You." She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Judy Matthews. All of the young ladies wore daisy wrist corsages.

A large simulated diamond ring was placed on top of the piano. The pictures of the bride and groom - elect were placed in the circle entwined with daisies.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Fremont Goetz of Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Byron Sharp and Mrs. Willard Cotton of Malden, Mrs. F. C. Suggett from Columbia, Mo., grandmother of the honored guest, Mrs. Carliss Jones, an aunt, from Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Suggett and Mrs. Jones were presented corsages from the hostess.

The following morning Mrs. Earl Jarvis and Mrs. Reginald Harwell entertained with a coffee party and bridal shower in honor of Miss Suggett.

The Jarvis home, where the coffee was given, was beautifully appointed throughout with arrangements of daisies. The mantle held greenery interspersed with hurricane lamps holding yellow tapers, and below on a marble table was an arrangement of plumosa fern and daisies.

Miss Suggett was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. Miss Kay Sargent and Robert Earl Jarvis, Jr., assisted in opening the gifts.

The dining room table was overlaid with a white Italian cut work cloth and centered with a silver and cut glass epergene with white daisies and yellow tapers. Punch was served from an heirloom hand-cut crystal punch bowl. Coffee was served from a silver service.

Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Harwell entertained the immediate family with a luncheon in the Harwell home.

Magnolias and a crystal hand cut candelabra formed the centerpiece for the dining room table.

The Modern Christian

How do we know that God is interested in man today?

In the New Testament, we observe Christ's human thoughts and actions that reflect the mystery of His Person.

He is the Word who speaks continually of His Father. His whole Person is to speak the Father, wherein man will ultimately find his eternal home.

Christ says that His mission is to reveal the Father to men and to bring men back to the Father.

We have to realize then that the Risen Christ living in the Christian community is a constant sign of His Father.

It is so easy to merely speak of these things. Christ is the Son of God and He became Man; what else could one want to know? Such matters can not be passed off so easily.

God created the world. He became involved in the whole business of human life. The impact of God's decision is continual and operative in man today. Each person has to constantly refine his idea of what God is.

We think of Christianity as the best form of religion. There are other religions, but what Christians often fail to grasp is the uniqueness of their faith.

That a real personal God is interested in making friends with us is absolutely incredible. That we might enter into that friendship, He gives us the power to respond to His invitation.

Our return note of acceptance to His invitation is hallmarked by three basic words: faith, hope, and love. However, they are more than mere words. They are the work of the Risen Christ in men, bringing them through this busy world to the Father.

The Risen Christ is seen as continual and operative in man, in so far as man answers the Father's invitation by faith, hope, and love.

The historical Christ and the Risen Christ are the same Christ. God the Father has not removed the presence of His Son from the midst of men. It is not the century in which one lives that is decisive, but one's response of faith, hope, and love.

Potlatch Edges Scott City

Payne Saves Game

Sikeston's Potlatch Forest and Scott City's Connie Mack team locked up in a duel of the Titans last night at V.F.W. Stadium. Potlatch came out on top of the night's action, with a 3 to 2 victory. The Foresters have now downed Scott City twice. Scott City dealt Potlatch their only defeat of the season.

Potlatch scored their winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning, on two bases on balls and two Scott City errors.

The losing pitcher for Scott City Brant, gave up only four hits in the contest. He struck out 7 Forester hitters and walked three. The Scott City team made four costly errors in the game.

Spears was the winning pitcher for the Sikeston team. He was relieved in the sixth inning by fireman Payne. Payne came in with two men on base and one out. He fanned the last two men, to get the Foresters out of trouble. He went on to fan the three Scott City batters he faced in the top of the seventh. Payne faced five men in the contest and struck out five. Spears worked six and one-third innings, giving up seven hits, fanned three and walked two.

Grelle Tops Snell In Run

HELSINKI, Finland, AP--Jim Grelle from Oregon, has parlayed French dynamo Michael Jazy's absence and the form failure of Olympic champion Peter Snell into an American coup in the 1,500 meter run --highlight of the World Track and Field Games.

With Jazy, world record holder at the mile, two miles and 3,000 meters, on the sidelines and Snell unable to mount the pace that made him the world's premier middle distance runner a year ago, the methodical Grelle nipped former Oregon teammate Dryol Burleson in Thursday's 1,500. Snell finished a distant fifth in the comparatively slow race.

Grelle, outsprinting Burleson after the pair caught pacesetter John Davies, Snell's New Zealand countryman with 200 meters to go, was clocked in 3:40.8. Burleson finished in 3:41.4.

The victory gave the American six firsts in the Games.

The defensive backfield group that finished the 1964 season as the football Cardinals' No. 1 unit has signed for 1965, it was announced today by the Big Red.

The quartet, each member of which scored at least one touchdown during the season, includes corner backs Pat Fischer and Jimmy Burson and safeties Larry Wilson and Jerry Stovall. All will report to the Cardinals' Lake Forest, Illinois, training camp on July 24.

Fischer, who won all-pro honors and was practically a unanimous choice in the Most Valuable Player ballotting by his teammates, will be in his fifth NFL season. The 5-9, 170-pound speedster from Nebraska led the Cardinals with 10 interceptions, a total good for second in the league. He scored three touchdowns during the season, returning an interception for a touchdown in each of the victories over Washington, and dashing 49 yards with a recovered fumble to provide the winning score in the 21-20 verdict over Pittsburgh.

Wilson, veteran of the group, will be starting his sixth campaign. The Poplar Idahoan, a graduate of the University of Utah, is well-recognized around the NFL as an outstanding free safety. He picked off three passes during the year, returning one 42 yards for a score against the Eagles, and also holds the ball on conversion and field goal attempts.

Stovall, the Big Red's No. 1 draft choice after a brilliant college career, stepped into the starting lineup as a rookie in 1963 and has not been displaced. He intercepted three passes last year, returning one for a touchdown against the Eagles, and also scored on an interception against Green Bay in the NFL Playoff Bowl. The 6-2, 205-pound Stovall also paced the Cardinals in kickoff returns, running back 24 for 566 yards.

Burson, who stepped into the starting lineup late in the season, came fast as the year progressed, making key defensive plays and interceptions. He intercepted three passes and, though he didn't score that way, tallied on a 68-yard punt return against the San Francisco 49ers. He averaged 10.4 yards a return on 12 returns during the season.

Jaycees took the win by clobbering Lions 5-0. The powerful Jaycee squad was headed in not only pitching, but hitting by Craig. Craig, the star of the night, slugged two fast balls over the fence for two of the runs scored by their team.

Jones also helped Craig in the home run field as he pounded one over the fence to add up another run for the winners. He also had another hit for the night--a double.

Crader, catcher for Lions, hit the ball for a single to keep Craig from hurling a no hitter.

The losing pitcher was Wooley who gave up 10 hits and 5 runs.

Cards Down Bucs 7 to 6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It wasn't really a St. Louis rally, but rather a complete collapse by the Pirates' Bob Veale that permitted the Cardinals four runs on one hit in the eighth when Veale went wild. He gave up a single to pinch hitter Bill White, then walked three batters, hit two more with pitches and then threw a wild pitch that allowed two runs.

Pinch hitter Bob Skinner was then walked by reliever Don Schwall with the bases loaded to score the fourth run.

An inning later, the Cardinals scored three more runs on Phil Gagliano's single, Dick Groat's sacrifice, Mike Shannon's double, Curt Flood's single and a force play that permitted run No. 7.

The Pirates attempted a rally in their half of the last inning scoring two runs. Sadecki put on the brakes with the final out. They had led from the first inning when they tallied three runs off Curt Simmons on four hits and a walk. Bob Bailey scored the other Pittsburgh run in the seventh.

Hal Woodeshick, one of seven St. Louis pitchers, was credited with the victory -- his fifth against five losses. Joe Gibbon, who now is two and five, was the loser. Pittsburgh used five pitchers.

St. Louis, now with two victories behind them, goes to New York today where Bob Gibson 9-6 will face the Mets' Jack Fisher 6-8.

The Kansas City Athletics idle Thursday, will send John O'Donoghue 4-9 against Minnesota and Jim Grant 7-2 tonight at Kansas City.

Watkins Hurls One-Hitter

Bell City's Oilvers surprised no one by capturing the Championship of the New Hamburg softball Tournament, with an easy 6 to 2 victory over Kelso.

Ace hurler Johnny Watkins handcuffed the Kelso team, as he struck out 14 hitters and gave up only one hit in the entire contest.

Centerfielder Doug Kinder and Wayne Cowell were the big hitters for Bell City. Kinder, a long ball hitter, poled two home runs and a single in the game. He also had 4 RBI's in the contest. Cowell had two doubles and 1 RBI. The other Bell City run scored on an error.

The championship trophy was given to Bill Watkins manager of the team. Watkins gave it to Jim Delay, the Oliver's sponsor.

Malone & Hyde pounded one hit to help push in their three runs in that frame. KSIM added 3 runs in the second as Malone & Hyde produced 2 runs on 2 hits to keep the lead, 8-5. Malone made an attempt to gain the lead in the bottom of the fifth but could only manage one run to bring the score to 8-6. KSIM took 2 more runs in the last inning of play to anchor the win. Malone & Hyde collected two hits and one run in the last to wind up the game 10-7.

Malone & Hyde stayed ahead of their victors in hitting. They chalked up 9 hits compared to the winners 3. Eisenbach led the hitting rampage as he stepped to the plate 4 times and clobbered 4 hits. Byrd and Ryon each had 2 for 4 in the bout for the losers.

Foreign Affairs Give LBJ Trouble

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Johnson heads into the last half of 1965 his record can also be split in half: very successful at home; a lot of unfinished, dangling overseas business that leaves the world wondering.

His popularity at home is high, the polls say. Overseas he has been criticized for his handling of foreign affairs, particularly in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

He hasn't shown yet the same masterful talent for foreign affairs that he has demonstrated repeatedly in domestic problems.

His relations with Congress, business, labor, and civil rights groups have been excellent and tranquil. In getting Congress to do what he wants he is well on the way to the best record since President Franklin D. Roosevelt's early days.

He talks a lot, some times moralizing, some times in platitudes and some times in a way unmatched by any president, as in a recent speech expressing his compassion (a favorite word of his) for the Negro.

The astonishing energy he has shown in working at his job always has raised the inevitable question: How long can he keep it up?

There is a broad mystification about what to expect in foreign policy where Johnson plays the cards very close. For example: In six months how much deeper might the United States be in the Vietnamese war?

When he went to San Francisco last week to address the 20th anniversary meeting of the United Nations he got a lukewarm reception although the reason is not clear.

Some of the restraint among the statesmen listening to him may have been intended to express disapproval of his foreign actions; some may have been out of disappointment that he didn't come up with new ideas and programs.

President John F. Kennedy, at his death but not in his first few months as chief executive, had a far more shining image abroad than Johnson. But this was after he got off to a bad start by backing the Cuban refugees' disastrous invasion of Cuba.

Yet, Kennedy's policy basically was not much different from Johnson's — except for the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Johnson has been criticized for intervening in the Dominican revolt, a reminder to Latin Americans of the many times this country intervened in their affairs before. They couldn't tell whether they were looking at the beginning of a similar era under Johnson.

But Kennedy got an even worse reaction for the Cuban invasion.

Kennedy had slowly been building up American forces in Viet Nam. It's useless to try to guess now what he would have done eventually if confronted with the situation Johnson faced: Growing conquest by the Viet Cong and steadily developing chaos in South Viet Nam which, without American help, would have collapsed long ago.

There have been scattered, but comparatively few, critical voices against Johnson in Congress. Will this last?

Laboratories Working In Unusual Nonweapons Field

LOS ALAMOS, N. M. AP--During World War II years when the first atomic bombs were being secretly made in this mountain hideaway, one of the rumors in distant towns concerning what the scientists were up to was this:

"They're making windshield wipers for submarines."

Today, the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission makes no secret of the fact that it, and another laboratory at Livermore, are the places where all the nation's bombs, missiles and other nuclear arms are created.

Even so, some pretty unusual, nonweapons activities are going on at both laboratories.

These include:

1. The quest to harness the fearsome hydrogen bomb reaction for peacetime electricity production -- a quest which was pioneered at Los Alamos in a machine dubbed the "perhapsatron."

3. The "Rover Project" -- The dream of using nuclear reactors to propel spacecraft to distant planets, perhaps at speeds approaching the velocity of light, instead of using conventional chemical boosters.

3. "Plowshare" -- The Program aimed at using nuclear power in a range from manufacturing new elements and increasing the flow of natural gas deep underground to carving out canals and harbors on the earth's surface.

The two men who are most immediately responsible for keeping America's nuclear arsenal stocked with the very best in the weapons field are Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, director of the Los Alamos lab, and Dr. John Foster, director at Livermore, which is a branch of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley.

Bradbury was one of the developers of the original A-bombs in those hush-hush days when the Army took over an exclusive boys ranch school and built a secret city around it.

Bradbury says weapons still constitute at least 50 per cent of the lab's effort, and that "if the chips were down" -- and war was on or imminent -- his entire staff of 7,000 would be working full blast on the exclusive effort of producing even more powerful, efficient and sophisticated weapons.

From the start of discussions leading up to the signing of the limited nuclear test ban treaty --which outlaws all but underground testing--Bradbury was convinced that such a move offered the "possibility of taking the first real, even if small, step in the direction of the prevention of a nuclear war."

And he says "We've learned to test underground successfully."

The Atomic Energy Commission, in formal reports, has said that "significant progress" has been made in both offensive and defensive nuclear capability during the period of underground testing.

Foster was at first vigorously opposed to calling off atmospheric nuclear tests.

He argued, in testimony before congressional committees, that the elimination of atmospheric tests would disadvantage the United States more than Russia.

He says his fears have been eased somewhat by the relatively rapid pace of America's underground testing and by what he terms clear evidence that the laboratories have continued to maintain top people and vigorous programs.

Foster also says that the treaty --which stipulates that radioactivity from underground tests be kept within the territorial limits of the testing country--is "preventing us from proceeding as vigorously as we otherwise might" with canal-digging and kindred potential applications of the Plowshare program.

"We're doing our best," he said, "to 'clear up' nuclear explosives so that the radioactivity will be lessened.

"But, as for exploding, say, 100 kilotons -- the equivalent of 100,000 tons of TNT -- to produce craters for something like the Panama Canal, we can't do this today without violating the treaty--at least as it's being interpreted by the United States."

However, Foster and other AEC "Plowshare" experts make clear that even under strictest interpretation of the treaty, many valuable lessons can be learned from cratering experiments of more modest explosive yields.

They also point out that deep-underground Plowshare tests--the ones involving no cratering at all--offer rich potential for yeilding other peacetime benefits for man. These would include such possibilities as releasing oil from shale deposits difficult to tap by conventional techniques.

Highway 25 Opening Will Be Marked

DEXTER -- The Dexter and Bloomfield Chambers of Commerce will co-ordinate efforts to hold a formal opening ceremony upon completion of U. S. hwy. 25 connecting the two cities.

The proposal was presented to the Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce Monday night by Joe Weber and Barney Miller of Dexter who were appointed co-chairmen of the project for their organization. Neither man offered any specific program, explaining that the Dexter Chamber of Commerce first wanted to learn if Bloomfield wanted to join in some sort of dedicatory or opening ceremony when the dual highway is ready for traffic.

No date has been set.

Suggestions ranging from a double ribbon-cutting ceremony with federal, state and highway dignitaries participating to holding caravans traveling the length of the new highway for a sight-seeing tour of the two towns.

A committee will be appointed by the Bloomfield organization to meet with the Dexter committee in the near future to work on a program.

Million Dollar Suit Settled

MALDEN -- Three suits against Associated Natural Gas Co. totaling in excess of one million dollars, have been settled out of court. Amount of the settlement was not made public.

The suits were filed by Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Gaston of Malden as the result of burns received when an explosion and fire destroyed their home in Malden the night of Dec. 26, 1963. Dr. and Mrs. Gaston were burned critically and their 12-year - old son, Sammy lost his life.

In the petition, it was alleged that the explosion and resulting fire was caused by a gas main that leaked and permitted natural gas to accumulate in the Gaston dwelling. It was alleged that the gas percolated through the ground under a concrete street, concrete driveway and accumulated in large quantities within the foundation, walls and interior of the house without the knowledge or fault of the Gastons.

Judgment was sought on two counts. The first was $1,100,000 for injuries received allegedly rendering Dr. Gaston permanently and totally incapacitated from work and for medical expenses incurred.

On the second count Dr. Gaston sought judgment of $250,000 for the loss of the service and consortium of his wife, Geraldine Gaston, and for medical expenses incurred.

A third suit was filed on behalf of Mrs. Gaston.

Ask Suggestions For Next M. U. President

COLUMBIA -- The board of curators of the University of Missouri has named a screening committee to make recommendations to the board for appointment of a new president to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellis when he retires as president of the University System in August of 1966.

Dr. Ellis reaches 65, the retirement age for administrative officers of the University, in July of 1966.

The committee consists of three members of the representative of the alumni of the University, and a representative of the faculty. The curators on the committee are Robert Neill, St. Louis; Oliver B. Ferguson, Fredericktown, and William H. Billings, Kennett; Justice James A. Finch, Jr., of the Supreme Court of Missouri in Jefferson City; and Dr. A. G. Unklesbay, professor of geology at the University in Columbia.

Neill, president of the board, is chairman of the committee.

The committee had an organizational meeting in St. Louis and announced that it would receive suggestions from members of the faculty, alumni, and other friends of the University. It asks that suggestions be submitted in writing to the chairman or any other member of the University of Missouri screening committee.

Dr. Ellis was appointed the thirteenth President of the University of Missouri on April 16, 1955, after serving several months as acting president. He had been dean of the faculty of the College of Arts and Science since 1946. He joined the faculty in 1930 as assistant professor of history, and later advanced to professor of history, a title he still holds.

During his administration as president, the University has developed into a Statewide University system with major campuses at Rolla, Kansas City, and St. Louis as well as at Columbia, each of them under a chancellor responsible to the president. The four campuses had a combined total enrollment of more than 27,000 students this year.

President Ellis has served on many national and international committees and commissions. During 1963-64 he was president of the National Association of State Universities and Land - Grant Colleges, and 1958 - 62 was a member of the Board of Foreign Scholarships of the U. S. Department of State.

He is president of the board of directors of the Harry S. Truman Library Institute for National and International Affairs in Independence; secretary of the American Council on Education; president of the National Commission on Accrediting; a member of the President's Board of the William Rockhill Nelson Trust of Kansas City; a member of the executive committee of the Missouri School of Religion in Columbia; co-chairman of the Missouri Commission for Education Beyond the High School; and past president of the Missouri Association of Colleges and Universities. He also helped organize and served as president of the Mid - America Association of State Universities.

During World War II he served in the historical branch, War Department General Staff of the Army with rank of major, and he was chairman of the advisory committee on the History of the U.S. Army, 1955-59.

Taxes Cut

MALDEN--A tax reduction on personal and real estate property tax was approved by the Malden City Council.

The tax rate since 1962 has been $1.80 per $100 assessed valuation. This includes $1 for the general revenue fund; 20 cents for the park fund; and 60 cents to retire the 1955 general obligation bonds.

Mayor R. J. Dirks brought to the attention of the Council that the 60 cents used to retire the 1955 general obligation bonds could be cut in half and still retire the bonds in adequate time. He recommended that the rate be reduced from 60 cents to 30 cents.

The new tax rate on city personal and real estate will be $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation which will represent a tax reduction of one-sixth for the residents of Malden.

The Democratic convention of 1924 cast 104 ballots before finally choosing John W. Davis as its candidate for the Presidency. As a result of the apparent deadlock the delegates were away from home longer than they had expected to be.

An old-timer recalls that at one point the Massachusetts chairman called his delegates together and said, "Gentlemen, we've got to make a choice. Either we pick a cheaper hotel or a more liberal candidate." — John J. McAleer

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick tells the story of two men who were watching their church burn down. One said, "Bill, I haven't seen you at church for a long time. Why don't you come more often?" To which Bill replied, "This is the first time I've seen the church on fire." — Francis C. Pray

Will Rogers covered several Presidential campaigns. At one of the 1932 political conventions, a reporter went over to him and said pompously, "I'm covering strictly the serious side of the convention, Mr. Rogers, so if I see anything humorous, I'll let you know."

"Thanks," said Rogers. "And if I see anything serious happen I'll tell you about it." — James Smart

Reindict Trio For Extortion

MEMPHIS, Tenn. -- Three Southeast Missourians indicted in May for extortion have been reindicted by a Federal Grand Jury under different sections of the federal extortion laws.

The three men, Walter Richardson, Jr., 38, of Portageville president of Wil-Mar Advertising Co., of Sikeston; William R. McIntosh of Sikeston, 44, general manager of the firm; and Joe Dale Wilson, 32, of Sikeston, a Wil-Mar salesman, were indicted on a charge of using a telephone April 23 in Sikeston to call William Tanner, president of Pepper Sound Studios, Inc., in Memphis.

They were accused of demanding $5,000 to avoid bodily harm to Tanner's brother, Henry Faye Tanner, 37, a Pepper employe.

A spokesman for the Justice Department said the men were reindicted under a different section to assure their trial in Memphis, where the indictment contends the extortion took place.

Under the old indictment, the defendants could have been chosen to be tried in either Tennessee or Missouri.

Conviction under the new indictment carries a maximum penalty of a 15-year prison sentence and a $30,000 fine.

A screening committee, selected by the University of Missouri board of curators in Columbia, will make recommendations to the board for the appointment of a new president of the University to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellis, who will retire as president in August of 1966. Seated from left, are: Chairman Robert Neill, St. Louis, Mo., president of the board; Judge James A. Finch, Jr., Jefferson City, a justice of the supreme court of Missouri; standing from left: William H. Billings, Kennett; Oliver B. Ferguson, Fredericktown, vice president of the board; and Dr. A. G. Unklesbay, Columbia, professor and chairman of the department of geology, and chairman of the University system committee on retirement and staff benefits.

Lake Opens For Fishing

LILBOURN -- Fishermen flocked to New Madrid County's newest fishing spot this Thursday when Wolfe Lake opened at 5 p.m., for its first day for public use.

The lake, located on state route D one-and-one half miles west of Lilbourn, is stocked with 50,000 catfish and bream.

Louie Wolfe, owner of the lake, said that the 20-acre lake was first stocked three years ago and that no fish have been taken from the lake since then. Wolfe said that the fish have spawned twice since the lake was first stocked.

The lake will be open for fishing from 5 a.m. until 7 p.m. on a fee basis daily.

A dirt road leads to the lake. It will not be open on rainy days and fishermen will be required to leave the lake if rain appears imminent.

Boats will be allowed on the Lake, but no motors will be permitted.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My question may not be the type you care to answer in the paper. If you do reply in print please don't pull any punches. Tell me if you think I am a snob, or if I am justified in feeling that somebody is out of line.

I am a college student. When I returned from school last month the maid greeted me at the front door with a great big, "Welcome home." She gave me the "Welcome home" bit when I returned from school for Christmas vacation, too. It bothered me both times.

I somehow feel it is not the maid's place to welcome me home. Shouldn't she just say "Hello, nice to see you back" --or something equally impersonal?--MISS UN-E.Z.

Dear Un: Maybe you'd prefer, "Welcome home, Your Royal Highness?"

A person whose nose is as out of joint as yours should be pleased that anyone speaks to her at all.

Feel flattered that the maid would welcome you so warmly. It's a compliment--perhaps undeserved.

Dear Ann Landers: My letter will probably never get in the paper because I am not an 11-year-old unwed mother or a 70-year-old woman trying to find happiness with a man half her age.

What I want to know is this: Is it proper for a son and a daughter to split the cost of a wedding ring for their mother? Our parents were married during the depression and Pa couldn't afford anything but a simple band. (I think it is aluminum.) Over the years the band has worn thin and is now too small for her finger.

I know Ma would love a wedding band with a few diamonds in it but Pa can't get it for her. My brother and I could buy Ma a nice wedding ring but we don't know if it would be proper. How about it?--BIG QUANDARY

Dear Big Q.: It is not proper for children to buy their mother a wedding ring. I suggest two alternatives: (1) Buy your mother a dinner ring. (She'd probably be thrilled.) (2) Give Pa the money to buy Ma a new wedding ring and let the gift be from him.

Dear Ann Landers: What can a fellow do when he finds out his sister is a tramp and that their mother knows all about it bur refuses to say anything for fear the girl will move out of the house?

Ellie fell for this jerk at the naval base. For a year he slept at our house weekends, drank Dad's beer, used Ellie's car and never spent a dime on her. She even bought her own engagement ring. When his time was up he left town and said he'd send for her. That was the last she heard of him.

Now Ellie is mixed up with another bum who is using her the same way. In fact, this second bum is a buddy of the first bum. I'm sure Bum Number One tipped off Bum Number Two that Ellie is a real friendly girl with round heels and a soft head.

My mother says to keep my nose out of it because now she at least knows where Ellie is. And where is she? She's home --night after night, carrying on like a cheap trollop right under the family's nose. What can I do? --DISGUSTED BROTHER

Dear Brother: Probably nothing. But make one last effort to talk some sense into your sister's soft head. Tell her what it looks like from the male point of view. And let's hope she listens.

Do you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Portageville Attracts New Industry

PORTAGEVILLE --Optimistic businessmen are spearheading investment in the future of Portageville. An eight year gamble is now bearing fruit with the opening Friday, of the Portageville Manufacturing Company, employing 15 Portageville citizens.

The fact that Portageville had a building suitable for factory operation made this start possible. Credit for this valuable asset goes to the Portageville Development Corporation, an organization formed by Portageville businessmen, dedicated to economic growth of Portageville.

The factory building, owned by the Development Corporation, was built at an original cost of $30,000. A mortgage underwritten by business leaders now amounts to $7,500. The indebtedness is being paid off through profits from the Annual Soybean Festival. In return, stock is issued in the name of the Portageville Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber now holds controlling interest in the Portageville Development Corporation.

Corporation rules restrict use of the factory building of manufacturing operations. It is not to be used as a warehouse for storage, not as a retail store competing with Portageville business community.

Installation of air conditioning was required to make year-round occupancy possible. A unit was purchased for $6,800. Part of this cost is being defrayed by donations from the Kiwanis Dlub as a Community Building Project. Proceeds from tickets now being sold on a color Television set will be applied toward payment on the air conditioner.

Do you ever pause to listen to the voice of God? We hear it every day, wherever we may be.

In the whispering of tall trees . . . the music of rushing brooks . . . the songs of the birds . . . the gay laughter of happy children . . . we hear the voice of the Great Creator. Through his infinite grace a bird is enabled to serenade his mate, a tiny cricket chirps its faint refrain. God is the Bringer of all blessings to man and beast alike.

Let us give thanks to Him who has so enriched our lives. Open church doors beckon all over our land. Let us seek the House of the Lord, and enter in to pay Him homage. Here through prayer and humility, let us rededicate ourselves to His service and glorification.

Who's taking the step that could step up employment?

"Who is doing something practical—in the American tradition of self-help and local action—to create more job opportunities and to train people for existing job opportunities?"

Answer: American private enterprise—and individual cities and towns across the country. And now industry is taking a new step to boost employment. The National Association of Manufacturers has launched a major, nation-wide program called STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems). STEP is searching America to find proven, successful ways to find more jobs and to fit people for available jobs. Its findings appear as verified case studies which are offered to companies and communities without charge.

For more information, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Today's Spanish Lesson

"Hubo" is the past tense of "Hay" and it means There was, there were. By simply using the word "no" in front of these "Keys", you can express "no there was not" and "no there were not", etc.

1. A) There were ten men at the dinner. B) Hubo diez hombres en la cena. C) OO-bo/ de-ACE /om-BRAYS/ N/lah/ SAY-nah.

2. A) There were not ten men at the dinner. B) No hubo diez hombres en la cena. C) no/ OO-bo/ de-ACE/ om-BRAYS/ N/lah/SAY-nah.

3. A) There was enough money to eat. B) Hubo bastante dinero para comer. C) OO-bo/ bahs-TAHN-tay/ de-NAIR-oh/ PAH-rah/co-MARE.

The value of this "Key" cannot be over looked. The present tense "Hay" (I) and the past tense "Hubo" (OO-bo) form an easy invasion into the Spanish language.

"Hay" (I) -- There is, there are.

"No hay" (no/I) -- No, there is not. No, there are not.

"Hubo" (OO-bo)-- There was, there were.

"No hubo" (no/OO-bo)--No, there was not. No, there were not.

Remember the "H" is always silent in Spanish, i. e. Hotel--o-TELL.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

Yield yourselves to God as men who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments of righteousness. (Romans 6:13, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, Thou hast seen much in me that has been displeasing to Thee and harmful to others. I ask forgiveness. Take me into Thine own hands of love to cleanse and prepare me as Thou seest best for Thy great service. In Jesus' name I ask. Amen.

The classic statement of unavailability is the telegram that William Tecumseh Sherman sent to the Republican convention of 1884. The wire stated firmly: "I will not accept if nominated and will not serve if elected." But as a postscript to the Sherman telegram it deserves to be noted that the convention was not seriously considering nominating him for the Presidency. — Malcolm Moos and Stephen Hess

ELKHORN, Neb. -- Captain Hartsill R. Burchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Burchfield of Matthews, Mo., has been graduated from the University of Omaha (Neb.), with a B. G. E. degree in business administration and economics.

Captain Burchfield completed his college work under Operation Bootstrap, an Air Force education program assistance program.

The Matthews High School graduate, has also attended Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and the University of Maryland's European Division. He was commissioned upon completion of Officer Candidate School.

His wife, Grace, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCoy of Matthews.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- Today, and for the next two Fridays, Blytheville Air Force Base will act as host for over 200 pre-school children from Missouri.

Ranging between the ages of 5-6 years old, the youngsters are visiting Air Force bases throughout the United States in conjunction with President Johnson's program "Operation Head Start".

The first group from Missouri to visit the installation here arrived last Friday.

Accompanied by several adult leaders, the youngsters were given a first hand view of various sections on base including the flight line area, the sentry dog section and the fire department.

Twin views of the giant B-52 Strategic Air Command bombers and the KC-135 Stratotankers seemed to highlight the youngsters visit.

The group was conducted on a walk-around tour of the bomber, and they were able to walk-through the Stratotaker.

Prior to their departure, the kindergarten grads were taken to the base dining hall and treated to a meal consisting of fried fish, pizza pie, milk and ice cream.

One cannibal, while eating dinner, complained to his companion, "I hate my mother-in-law."

"So all right, why don't you just eat the vegetables?" his friend replied.

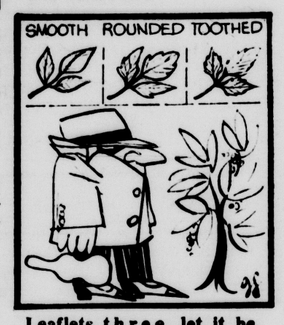
Rub Out Poison Ivy

Until recent years poison ivy, as an unwelcome guest on your property, was sad. sad news. Getting rid of it included garbing yourself with a costume as close to a deep sea diver's as possible, grubbing out the plants, roots and all, then trying to figure out what to do with the infected gloves and clothing to get rid of the long-lasting oils from the plant. Now it's different and here's how:



Leaflets three, let it be. Leaves vary, but cluster in threes. Keep your distance.

June and July are best months to attack poison ivy and oak. Use chemical sprays.

Formulas containing 2,4-D or 2,4,5-T or amitrole or ammonium sulfamate work best.

Two or more applications are needed to assure success. Follow directions carefully.

PRAYER REQUESTS

FOR EVERY time Thou has denied
My prayer request, I thank Thee, Lord,
For often I saw within a wide
And understanding afterward
That what I deeply longed for would
Have meant a gray and grievous road.
And, Lord, though one denied request
Still seems a bright and gloried thing,
Teach me that Thy denial was best,
And help me on my journeying
To know with faith-deep certainty
Thy will is happiest for me!

Returning from a holiday week-end, with my wife at the wheel, we attempted to overtake a slow moving vehicle. A car was approaching from the other direction, and my wife jammed on the brake, but not before she hit the bumper of the car ahead.

The driver bolted from the car, and I expected quite a scene. But the fellow was surprisingly calm; he just stood there, hands on hips, staring at my horror-stricken wife. "I'm sorry about your bumper," she said, "What can I give you?"

The man just shook his head and started back to his car. "Nothing, lady," he sighed. "Just a head start."

More Flu Predicted

WASHINGTON AP -- A Public Health Service advisory committee predicted today there probably will be an increased number of influenza cases in the coming winter season.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry announced the committee's recommendation for vaccination of persons in groups which experience high mortality from epidemic influenza.

The Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices noted that influenza incidence in the United States during 1964-65 was relatively limited. The last major epidemic of Type A influenza occurred in 1962-63 in most of the country and in 1963-64 on the West Coast.

The committee urged that persons in the following groups be vaccinated against influenza: Those suffering from chronic debilitating diseases, older persons, pregnant women and patients in nursing homes and other environments in which crowded living arrangements may lead to a more rapid spread of the disease.

Planes Pound Dien Bien Phu

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- U. S. Air Force planes pounded the airfield and barracks in North Viet Nam's Dien Bien Phu today, site of the decisive French defeat in the Indochina war.

South of the border, government troops killed 120 Viet Cong and captured eight others in three ground operations, a U. S. military spokesman reported.

Communists mortars hit two air strips with mortar fire during the night. U. S. spokesman said three helicopters were damaged at Cheo Reo, 220 miles northeast of Saigon, and another helicopter crashed due to mechanical failure after it took off during the attack on the Soc Trang strip, 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

U. S. spokesmen said a total of 30 planes pounded the targets at Dien Bien Phu, about 185 miles west northwest of Hanoi. They said no antiaircraft fire was encountered over the scene of the bitter 1954 fighting and no enemy planes were sighted.

Hear Signals From Space

BOCHUM, Germany AP -- The Bochum Observatory reported today hearing signals from what it believes is a "large Soviet space experiment." It said that apparently two space craft or satellites were in orbit close together.

The observatory said that after noting the second orbit of the craft it still was not able to say if the experiment was manned or unmanned.

The observatory director, Heinz Kaminski, said the signals varied from those normally picked up from Russia's unmanned Cosmos satellite series.

He said that on the first orbit, snatches of conversation were heard but it was unclear whether they came from a ground station or aloft.

Tiros 10 Circles Earth

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP -- The Tiros 10 weather satellite circled the globe today, its camera eyes ready to record the birth and movement of hurricanes, typhoons and other storms over a great area of the globe.

The mechanical meteorologist, launched late Thursday night, joined three other operating Tiros satellites -- nos. 7, 8 and 9--on space patrol. The quartet could provide the most comprehensive photographic coverage yet of a full season of tropical storms.

Tiros 10 is the first of the series paid for by the U. S. Weather Bureau and is the forerunner of an operational system the bureau plans to begin launching early in 1966.

The previous nine Tiros satellites, all successful, were financed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Although classed as research vehicles, many of the more than half a million pictures they have produced were used in operational weather channels around the world.

Tiros 10 rode into space atop a Delta rocket that roared off its launching pad Thursday night and blazed into a dark Florida sky. The Douglas Delta, recording its 30th satellite success in 32 launchings, hurled the 290-pound payload into a north-south orbit more than 400 miles above the earth.

New Jacket For Day Book

WASHINGTON AP -- The book former Postmaster General J. Edward Day wrote is getting a new jacket.

When early copies of the book, "My Appointed Round: 929 Days as Postmaster General," appeared here, it was immediately noted that the dust jacket was decorated with color photographs of U. S. airmail stamps. The law forbids such color reproductions, and the maximum penalty for violation is 15 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

So Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the New York publisher, has ordered booksellers to destroy the dust jacket. They're ordering a new one. The publication date is July 8.

Smaller business firms account for four more buildings, and at least 20 homes are being built by individuals or real estate firms, Connor said.

He estimated the total cost of the homes at a minimum $200,000.

Police said the congressman and Patrolman J. C. Goodwin were standing between their cars when the truck, driven by Norman Turner, 53, of Westville, N. J., apparently sideswiped the patrol car and slammed into the left rear of Thompson's 1965 Cadillac.

'Accept New Ideas'-Hearnes

KANSAS CITY AP -- Reluctance to accept new ideas has hamstrung progress in the Midwest, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri said Thursday night.

Hearnes and Gov. William H. Avery of Kansas spoke at the convention of the Certified Livestock Markets Association, an organization of auction firms.

Defends Remap Plan

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Threatened by possible court action, the Missouri House redistricting plan is being defended by its chief sponsor.

Rep. Norbert Jasper, D-Franklin county, told the Associated Press the plan had "a better than equal chance" of standing up in court. Jasper was chairman of the House committee that drafted the plan later passed by the legislature.

It maps out 168 representative districts based on population. Last year a federal district court ruled out the present system of giving at least one representative to each county, regardless of population.

A constitutional objection to the plan was filed by state Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R - Clayton, soon after the legislature adjourned early Thursday. Jones predicted a quick court test.

Jasper cited data showing that 48.1 per cent of the state's population live within the minimum number of new districts needed to elect a majority of House members. The data, he said, supplied by political sceintists from the University of Missouri.

Federal courts, he said, pay particular attention to the minimum number of residents that can elect a majority. He quoted U. S. Solicitor General Archibald Cox as saying the courts probably would accept a plan under which at least 46 per cent could elect a majority.

Jasper conceded that one of the new districts might be considered a gerrymander. That district begins at the Iowa line and stretches south more than 50 miles, covering Worth and Gentry counties and a narrow panhandle leading into St. Joseph.

He said he wouldn't object to a "friendly" suit to test the measure.

Sen. John J. Johnson, D-St. Souis County, said he would file an objection also.

Largest district in the state is Stoddard County, 14.7 per cent above the average population of 25,713. The smallest is Randolph County, 14 per cent below average.

Not Worried About Rapids

ELK SPRINGS, Colo. AP -- Don Hatch, the veteran river runner who leads the Sen. Robert F. Kennedy party down the Yampa and Green Rivers along the Utah-Colorado border today, says he isn't worried about the river rapids.

The Kennedy family, including wife Ethel and five of the couple's nine children, flew to Vernal, Utah, Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. James Whittaker and their two sons.

Whittaker was with Kennedy when he became the first person to ascend Mt. Kennedy in Canada. Whittaker, of Seattle, Wash., was the first American to climb Mt. Everest.

Hatch, 37, is a school teacher who has been running the rivers since childhood. He will command the three 27-foot rubber rafts the party will use in the 83-mile journey.

The party travels from Lily Park on the Yampa River in northwestern Colorado to Dinosaur Quarry on the Green River in eastern Utah.

Thousands Expected to Tour Independence Hall

PHILADELPHIA AP -- Thousands are expected this weekend to tour the old, red brick building on Philadelphia's Chestnut Street where the Declaration of Independence was signed 189 years ago.

They will be among the more than two million persons who annually visit Independence Hall, including tourists from all states and many countries. Heads of state and presidents periodically visit it.

Set in the brick countyard beside a statue of George Washington are two plaques, marking where Abraham Lincoln stood in 1861 and John F. Kennedy stood in 1962 during visits.

U. S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach will be the principal speaker at Monday's ceremonies, commemorating the activites of that steamy summer in 1776.

Independence Hall was originally built in the early 1730s to house Pennsylvania's General Assembly.

When originally built, the structure had no bell tower. One was added later, torn down, then restored. In it was hung 1753 the state house bell now known as the Liberty Bell.

The bell is now housed in the hall, forever muted by a huge crack.

Pope Invited To UN

VATICAN CITY AP -- The Vatican press office announced today that U. N. Secretary General U Thant has invited Pope Paul VI to the United Nations but added that it was too soon to say whether the pontiff would accept.

However, the unusual Vatican announcement, breaking a silence here on frequent reports about such a trip, suggested the Roman Catholic ruler has the trip under consideration.

Vatican sources said he well may make the transatlantic voyage, adding that he apparently is inclined toward accepting--or the Vatican press office would hardly have made an announcement, with the risks of possible disappointment should he decline the invitation.

Vatican sources said there was no indication whether the Pope would visit other places in the United States or would see President Johnson.

The Vatican press office statement was carried as a note in the Vatican newspaper the L'Osservatore Romano.

1st Calvary Colors Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — The colors of the historic 1st Cavalry Division have returned to the United States from the Far East after 22 years and two wars.

Those colors haven't been home since the vanguard of the division left the United States in May 1943 to fight the Japanese in the Pacific.

The 1st Cavalry's flag — decorated with streamers for distinguished service in World War II and Korea — will be handed to the Army's newest type "airmobile" division in a ceremony Saturday at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Thus, the Airmobile Division —designed to ride to battle aboard a fleet of more than 400 helicopters — will inherit a tradition dating back to the horse soldiers of Robert E. Lee and George Armstrong Custer.

At the same time, the colors of the 2nd Infantry Division will be transferred to Korea, to replace those of the 1st Cavalry. There will be no shift in manpower.

Although called cavalry, the 1st has been essentially an infantry division for nearly a quarter of a century.

Car Victim Was Student

It was William W. Shuffield, 20, Tacoma, Wash., a student at Logan College in St. Louis county, who was killed in a collision with a truck on highway 67, north of Poplar Bluff Thursday morning. He was first identified as a resident of Normandy.

Highway accidents reported in the area by the highway patrol during the last 24 hours included the following:

Two miles west of Morehouse on highway 60 at 4:15 p.m. yesterday, a 1963 Oldsmobile driven by Lawrence Beck, 43, Henderson, Ky., was pulling out from a side road when a 1964 International pickup truck, driven by Junior Pyle, 20, route one, Essex, was passing. Beck applied his brakes, the car went over the shoulder into a ditch and overturned. He was not injured.

A parked car which ran out of gas, resulted in three persons being taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, last night at 8:30 p.m. The accident occurred on route D three miles west of Lilbourn, when Henry Redman, 25, Lilbourn, ran out of gas and left his 1957 Studebaker parked in the east bound lane with the lights off.

A 1957 Pontiac, driven by Melvin Simmons, 19, Catron, was traveling east on the road and was blinded by the lights of an approaching car, when he ran into the stalled car. A passenger in Redman's car who was injured was Hught Payne, 14, Lilbourn, who received cuts on the right cheek. Injured in the Simmons car were Eddie Eaton, 15, Catron, who received a nose injury, and Bobby Miller, 11, route one, Lilbourn, who received cuts on the lower lip and chin.

Redman was arrested for improper parking, improper registration and no operator's license.

More Flu Predicted

WASHINGTON AP -- A Public Health Service advisory committee predicted today there probably will be an increased number of influenza cases in the coming winter season.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry announced the committee's recommendation for vaccination of persons in groups which experience high mortality from epidemic influenza.

The Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices noted that influenza incidence in the United States during 1964-65 was relatively limited. The last major epidemic of Type A influenza occurred in 1962-63 in most of the country and in 1963-64 on the West Coast.

The committee urged that persons in the following groups be vaccinated against influenza: Those suffering from chronic debilitating diseases, older persons, pregnant women and patients in nursing homes and other environments in which crowded living arrangements may lead to a more rapid spread of the disease.

Planes Pound Dien Bien Phu

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- U. S. Air Force planes pounded the airfield and barracks in North Viet Nam's Dien Bien Phu today, site of the decisive French defeat in the Indochina war.

South of the border, government troops killed 120 Viet Cong and captured eight others in three ground operations, a U. S. military spokesman reported.

Communists mortars hit two air strips with mortar fire during the night. U. S. spokesman said three helicopters were damaged at Cheo Reo, 220 miles northeast of Saigon, and another helicopter crashed due to mechanical failure after it took off during the attack on the Soc Trang strip, 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

U. S. spokesmen said a total of 30 planes pounded the targets at Dien Bien Phu, about 185 miles west northwest of Hanoi. They said no antiaircraft fire was encountered over the scene of the bitter 1954 fighting and no enemy planes were sighted.

Hear Signals From Space

BOCHUM, Germany AP -- The Bochum Observatory reported today hearing signals from what it believes is a "large Soviet space experiment." It said that apparently two space craft or satellites were in orbit close together.

The observatory said that after noting the second orbit of the craft it still was not able to say if the experiment was manned or unmanned.

The observatory director, Heinz Kaminski, said the signals varied from those normally picked up from Russia's unmanned Cosmos satellite series.

He said that on the first orbit, snatches of conversation were heard but it was unclear whether they came from a ground station or aloft.

Tiros 10 Circles Earth

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP -- The Tiros 10 weather satellite circled the globe today, its camera eyes ready to record the birth and movement of hurricanes, typhoons and other storms over a great area of the globe.

The mechanical meteorologist, launched late Thursday night, joined three other operating Tiros satellites -- nos. 7, 8 and 9--on space patrol. The quartet could provide the most comprehensive photographic coverage yet of a full season of tropical storms.

Tiros 10 is the first of the series paid for by the U. S. Weather Bureau and is the forerunner of an operational system the bureau plans to begin launching early in 1966.

The previous nine Tiros satellites, all successful, were financed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Although classed as research vehicles, many of the more than half a million pictures they have produced were used in operational weather channels around the world.

Tiros 10 rode into space atop a Delta rocket that roared off its launching pad Thursday night and blazed into a dark Florida sky. The Douglas Delta, recording its 30th satellite success in 32 launchings, hurled the 290-pound payload into a north-south orbit more than 400 miles above the earth.

New Jacket For Day Book

WASHINGTON AP -- The book former Postmaster General J. Edward Day wrote is getting a new jacket.

When early copies of the book, "My Appointed Round: 929 Days as Postmaster General," appeared here, it was immediately noted that the dust jacket was decorated with color photographs of U. S. airmail stamps. The law forbids such color reproductions, and the maximum penalty for violation is 15 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

So Holt, Rinehart and Winston, the New York publisher, has ordered booksellers to destroy the dust jacket. They're ordering a new one. The publication date is July 8.

Smaller business firms account for four more buildings, and at least 20 homes are being built by individuals or real estate firms, Connor said.

He estimated the total cost of the homes at a minimum $200,000.

Thompson, 49, was taking his family home from Washington for the July 4th weekend. His wife and two children, the family maid and the patrolman escaped serious injury. The truck driver was hospitalized for possible back injuries.

Police said the congressman and Patrolman J. C. Goodwin were standing between their cars when the truck, driven by Norman Turner, 53, of Westville, N. J., apparently sideswiped the patrol car and slammed into the left rear of Thompson's 1965 Cadillac.

'Accept New Ideas'-Hearnes

KANSAS CITY AP -- Reluctance to accept new ideas has hamstrung progress in the Midwest, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri said Thursday night.

Hearnes and Gov. William H. Avery of Kansas spoke at the convention of the Certified Livestock Markets Association, an organization of auction firms.

"Here in the Midwest we have an improperly used potential for accomplishment," Hearnes said.

He said there must be more cooperation between Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas

Defends Remap Plan

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Threatened by possible court action, the Missouri House redistricting plan is being defended by its chief sponsor.

Rep. Norbert Jasper, D-Franklin county, told the Associated Press the plan had "a better than equal chance" of standing up in court. Jasper was chairman of the House committee that drafted the plan later passed by the legislature.

It maps out 168 representative districts based on population. Last year a federal district court ruled out the present system of giving at least one representative to each county, regardless of population.

A constitutional objection to the plan was filed by state Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R - Clayton, soon after the legislature adjourned early Thursday. Jones predicted a quick court test.

Jasper cited data showing that 48.1 per cent of the state's population live within the minimum number of new districts needed to elect a majority of House members. The data, he said, supplied by political sceintists from the University of Missouri.

Federal courts, he said, pay particular attention to the minimum number of residents that can elect a majority. He quoted U. S. Solicitor General Archibald Cox as saying the courts probably would accept a plan under which at least 46 per cent could elect a majority.

Jasper conceded that one of the new districts might be considered a gerrymander. That district begins at the Iowa line and stretches south more than 50 miles, covering Worth and Gentry counties and a narrow panhandle leading into St. Joseph.

He said he wouldn't object to a "friendly" suit to test the measure.

Sen. John J. Johnson, D-St. Souis County, said he would file an objection also.

Largest district in the state is Stoddard County, 14.7 per cent above the average population of 25,713. The smallest is Randolph County, 14 per cent below average.

Not Worried About Rapids

ELK SPRINGS, Colo. AP -- Don Hatch, the veteran river runner who leads the Sen. Robert F. Kennedy party down the Yampa and Green Rivers along the Utah-Colorado border today, says he isn't worried about the river rapids.

The Kennedy family, including wife Ethel and five of the couple's nine children, flew to Vernal, Utah, Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. James Whittaker and their two sons.

Whittaker was with Kennedy when he became the first person to ascend Mt. Kennedy in Canada. Whittaker, of Seattle, Wash., was the first American to climb Mt. Everest.

Hatch, 37, is a school teacher who has been running the rivers since childhood. He will command the three 27-foot rubber rafts the party will use in the 83-mile journey.

The party travels from Lily Park on the Yampa River in northwestern Colorado to Dinosaur Quarry on the Green River in eastern Utah.

Thousands Expected to Tour Independence Hall

PHILADELPHIA AP -- Thousands are expected this weekend to tour the old, red brick building on Philadelphia's Chestnut Street where the Declaration of Independence was signed 189 years ago.

They will be among the more than two million persons who annually visit Independence Hall, including tourists from all states and many countries. Heads of state and presidents periodically visit it.

Set in the brick countyard beside a statue of George Washington are two plaques, marking where Abraham Lincoln stood in 1861 and John F. Kennedy stood in 1962 during visits.

U. S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach will be the principal speaker at Monday's ceremonies, commemorating the activites of that steamy summer in 1776.

Independence Hall was originally built in the early 1730s to house Pennsylvania's General Assembly.

When originally built, the structure had no bell tower. One was added later, torn down, then restored. In it was hung 1753 the state house bell now known as the Liberty Bell.

The bell is now housed in the hall, forever muted by a huge crack.

Pope Invited To UN

VATICAN CITY AP -- The Vatican press office announced today that U. N. Secretary General U Thant has invited Pope Paul VI to the United Nations but added that it was too soon to say whether the pontiff would accept.

However, the unusual Vatican announcement, breaking a silence here on frequent reports about such a trip, suggested the Roman Catholic ruler has the trip under consideration.

Vatican sources said he well may make the transatlantic voyage, adding that he apparently is inclined toward accepting--or the Vatican press office would hardly have made an announcement, with the risks of possible disappointment should he decline the invitation.

Vatican sources said there was no indication whether the Pope would visit other places in the United States or would see President Johnson.

The Vatican press office statement was carried as a note in the Vatican newspaper the L'Osservatore Romano.

1st Calvary Colors Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — The colors of the historic 1st Cavalry Division have returned to the United States from the Far East after 22 years and two wars.

Those colors haven't been home since the vanguard of the division left the United States in May 1943 to fight the Japanese in the Pacific.

The 1st Cavalry's flag — decorated with streamers for distinguished service in World War II and Korea — will be handed to the Army's newest type "airmobile" division in a ceremony Saturday at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Thus, the Airmobile Division —designed to ride to battle aboard a fleet of more than 400 helicopters — will inherit a tradition dating back to the horse soldiers of Robert E. Lee and George Armstrong Custer.

At the same time, the colors of the 2nd Infantry Division will be transferred to Korea, to replace those of the 1st Cavalry. There will be no shift in manpower.

Although called cavalry, the 1st has been essentially an infantry division for nearly a quarter of a century.

Car Victim Was Student

It was William W. Shuffield, 20, Tacoma, Wash., a student at Logan College in St. Louis county, who was killed in a collision with a truck on highway 67, north of Poplar Bluff Thursday morning. He was first identified as a resident of Normandy.

Highway accidents reported in the area by the highway patrol during the last 24 hours included the following:

Two miles west of Morehouse on highway 60 at 4:15 p.m. yesterday, a 1963 Oldsmobile driven by Lawrence Beck, 43, Henderson, Ky., was pulling out from a side road when a 1964 International pickup truck, driven by Junior Pyle, 20, route one, Essex, was passing. Beck applied his brakes, the car went over the shoulder into a ditch and overturned. He was not injured.

A parked car which ran out of gas, resulted in three persons being taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, last night at 8:30 p.m. The accident occurred on route D three miles west of Lilbourn, when Henry Redman, 25, Lilbourn, ran out of gas and left his 1957 Studebaker parked in the east bound lane with the lights off.

A 1957 Pontiac, driven by Melvin Simmons, 19, Catron, was traveling east on the road and was blinded by the lights of an approaching car, when he ran into the stalled car. A passenger in Redman's car who was injured was Hught Payne, 14, Lilbourn, who received cuts on the right cheek. Injured in the Simmons car were Eddie Eaton, 15, Catron, who received a nose injury, and Bobby Miller, 11, route one, Lilbourn, who received cuts on the lower lip and chin.

Redman was arrested for improper parking, improper registration and no operator's license.

The Daily Sikeston Standard

C. L. BLANTON, Jr., Managing Editor, Entered at the Postoffice of Sikeston, Scott County, Missouri as Second Class Mail Matter according to Act of Congress March 3, 1879, Saturday, February 4th, 1960.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Friday, July 2 Peter Sthrone goes to sleep in a tub of vaseline and wakes up oily next morning.

* * *

Traffic lights in the business section of Sikeston switch on at 7 a.m. This isn't early enough.

The density of traffic between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. appears to be heavy enough to justify switching on the stop and go signals at 5 a.m. or perhaps earlier.

City officials needn't take our word for it or do they have to resort to their own opinions or observations.

It should be easy to undertake a traffic study to determine the need -- if one exists scientifically.

Early morning traffic is particularly heavy on Malone Avenue and at its intersections with Kingshighway and New Madrid streets. There may be other bottlenecks.

In the absence of traffic lights, motorists on Malone speed through these intersections as if they had the right-of-way and maybe by custom they do.

This makes entering Malone hazardous for motorists on Kingshighway and New Madrid. They cannot depend on cars traveling on Malone to slow down or stop at intervals to let them through.

Waits occasionally are necessary. As far as pedestrians are concerned it is a bad time to be crossing the street with both through and turning traffic attempting to move rapidly through the intersections.

The stop and go lights provide both motorists and pedestrians with some protection and discipline and encourage a better paced and more orderly flow of vehicle traffic. Those who become accustomed to them discover that they miss them when they aren't in operation.

Other Sikeston streets by custom have become through streets. One of these is Murray Lane. A motorist entering Murray Lane had better stop first unless he wants to endanger himself and his vehicle.

Since motorists on Murray Lane take the right-of-way, stationary stop or yield signs should be placed at all intersections as a safety measure.

There probably are other streets in this same category. A traffic survey would reveal these and other hazards and corrective measures could be taken.

Local driving customs are difficult if not impossible for a city's visitor or newcomer to interpret readily.

Everything should be spelled out for him in adequate signs written in clear, understandable English and big enough for him to read at a glance.

THE INJURIOUS FOURTH

"Cracker balls" are fireworks that look so much like candy that children are tempted to bite into them. When the crackers explode they inflict bad mouth burns. The U. S. Food and Drug Administration in late June filed suit in federal court in Baltimore against distribution of 48 cases of these deceptive firecrackers found at a plant in Elkton, Md.

This is just another reminder that bootlegging of firecrackers is big business, despite state and federal laws. The sale and use of fireworks are restricted in 28 states to authorized public displays, and almost every state polices sale of fireworks in some fashion. Public Law 385, adopted by Congress in 1954, supports the state legislation by prohibiting the transportation of fireworks into states where their sale is illegal, much as federal law forbids shipment of liquor into a state which is legally dry.

But the Senate Junvenile Delinquency subcommittee in hearings two years ago developed major abuses in what the chairman, Sen. Thomas A. Dodd (D Conn.), described as a multi-million dollar industry. One manufacturer in Maryland did a more than $500,000-a-year business in making plastic cherry bombs. Subcommittee tests were said to prove that these bombs are capable of shattering a man's skull or blowing off a man's fingers.

Traffic in fireworks is aided by legal idiosyncracies. Maryland does forbid the sale but not the manufacture of fireworks, for example. A Baltimore fire marshal told the subcommittee two years ago of a stand owner on the District of Columbia side of the District-Maryland line who netted $3000 in two days of pre-Fourth of July sales.

The Fourth, on the strength of recent legislation, is a good deal saner than it used to be, but it's a long way from being perfectly safe.

FARM SAFETY MEANS SUCCESS

That old phrase, "Oh, for the peace and quiet of the country," is probably used often in today's busy world, but a second look might show that the farm isn't always so peaceful.

One sure way to convince yourself it isn't is to take a long look at the accident tolls: an estimated 8,400 deaths and 780,000 injuries to farm residents last year, according to the National Safety Council.

Sounds a little incredible? Well, it's not. Each day many farmers work in the fields or in the barn, and suddenly somehow, sometime during the workday are injured or killed. Not only can an injury disrupt one or two workdays, but a permanent injury or death can totally change an entire farm or farm family.

The farm picture is constantly changing. With new machinery, chemicals and methods, it is a challenge to learn how to utilize them all safely. Unless you carry this new knowledge through in everyday practice, you are not fulfilling your responsibility to yourself and your family. You might, for example, know everything about a machine, but allow a boy barely able to reach the controls to handle a tractor.

What can safe farming mean to you? Success.

THE LUSH AND LAZY SEASON

Summer, the lush and lazy season, is here. The date-line on this page clearly shows that, and it is confirmed by the thermometer. Not only youthful poets, dreaming by haunted streams, praise the joy and beauty that the season brings. After ample rain, the foliage on trees and shrubs is lush. Birds are cheerful on the boughs. Flowers--day lilies, feverfew, yarrow, daisies, buttercups--are bright as Joseph's coat and rich in the promise of more to bloom. The grass is thick and soft as velvet and green as emerald. Ozark streams are running fast, lacy around the rocks and placid in the deep holes. Beside the pool, the sun is tanning warm. Oh, the season's lush from the beginning. But lazy?

Keeping all that foliage within bounds already has taken hours and hours of work with saw and pruning shears. The splendor of the flowers cost more hours of weeding, cultivating and spraying. And it has been necessary to mow the lawn almost every other day. As for getting to the Current or Eleven Point, highway driving is not for the lazy. It's rough even to get to and from the ball park. As for tan, don't forget the grease; and who cleans the pool? Just as Mr. Emerson said a long time ago: "Do what we can, summer will have its flies. If we walk in the woods, we must feed mosquitoes."

But for those who would not surrender--at least not so early--the dream of a season of languor, to New England fact-finding, there is verse enough about skies darkly blue, and days still and bright. And there's Henry James saying to Edith Wharton: "Summer afternoon--summer afternoon; to me those always have been the two most beautiful words in the English language."

A WORTHWHILE JOB

Each year the American Meat Institute presents its Vesta Awards to editors of outstanding newspaper food pages. This year five of these editors took the honors. They represented newspapers published in small cities and large. Each editor was given a statutte of Vesta, mythological goddess of hearth and home. The judges were leading authorities in fields including home economics and nutrition.

The awards represent a thoroughly deserved recognition of important journalistic work, The food editor is permanently concerned with down-to-earth reader service. His function is to evalue and present new ideas and new variants on the old. Just about every housewife is constantly in search of better, more attractive ways to feed the family. And the newspaper, along with her row of cookbooks, is an invaluable aid.

More than that, the good food editor helps advance the standards of public health. In late years there have been recurrent waves of food faddism which, in the view of nutritional scientists and the medical fraternity, are a menace to mental and physical well-being. The food editor knows that the health-building diet, as well as the most succulent diet, consists of age-old elements -- meats, fruits, grains, vegetables, and the rest, each in proper proportion. His job -- and a highly worthwhile job it is -- is to show the reader how a sound diet can be followed, day after day, in virtually limitless variety.

MINORITY GROUPS, THE FIRST VICTIMS

There is a growing awareness in the United States that minority groups are the first victims in any country where communism takes over. The latest example of this awareness is the call by Jewish leaders to mobilize opinion in behalf of Jews being persecuted in the Soviet Union. The harsh anti-Semitism practiced by communist leaders is a fact of life in Russia today.

The persecution of three million Soviet Jews has aroused Jewish leaders to seek equal religious rights for Russian Jews.

Other minorities in communist countries have also felt the hard lash of communist tyranny. The Christian missionaries and many converts in China suffered great hardships from the time the communists took over that country. In recent months, African students in communist countries in Europe have been discriminated against; denied the right of protest; and even held in custody while wishing to return to their homes.

The truth is that communism cannot afford to let minority groups go about their own business. The communist bosses know that a member of a minority group is by the very nature of things almost certain to be an individualist. If there is anything communism cannot allow, it is individualism.

By contrast, the United States is traditionally a nation which protects the rights of minority groups. The American Polish community is an integral part of American life. Years ago Irish immigrants came to America in great numbers. They made their way by hard work and took full advantage of the opportunities offered in our growing country. The Irish, Germans, Poles and people of all nationalities and faiths fill important posts in our government and industry. Our system is not perfect, but it does offer the maximum opportunity for each and every individual -- minorities included.

The reverse, of course, is true regarding communism. The communist persecute the labor force while claiming that communism is the only true friend of the working man. The Communist Manifesto lays down the law that communists have no interests separate and apart from the interests of the working class.

This propaganda has fooled self - styled intellectuals in this country. But the effort to sell communism to American labor has failed. Organized labor as a whole is strongly anticommunist. The reasons for this are easy to find. In Soviet Russia, Red China, Cuba and other communist nations, laborers have lost rights which are often taken for granted in the United States. Workers in those nations cannot bargain about wage rates and working conditions. As a general rule, they are forbidden to strike. When a strike does occur it is staged either for show purposes, or it is quickly put down -- bloodily if need be.

This has been proved again and again. The most recent proof has come from Cuba long after Fidel Castro called himself the "friend of the working man."

Soon after Castro's takeover, anti-freedom groups officially headed by Fidel's brother, Raul, seized power and control over the Cuban Labor Federation in the face of opposition from the union's rank-and-file membership. A law was passed giving the Cuban Minister of Labor the power to take control of any local or national union and to remove any union official from office. Naturally, Raul Castro also has the power to name the replacements.

The right to strike was abolished. The Minister of Labor was given absolute control over all jobs in Cuba. Workers are now required to fill out a long questionaire giving the police full information about political and religious beliefs, property and financial status, and the names of relatives in Cuba and abroad.

All wages were frozen. A decree was signed stating that "all pay raises or any variation in the wage scale without the knowledge and approval of the Labor Ministry will be null and void." There are stiff penalties for being absent from work. Vacation time has been curtailed, and workers can be transferred from one job to another without their consent. Any worker who is late or who leaves his job early three times in a row can be fined one-half day's pay. Six late arrivals or early departures result in loss of a full day's pay.

Fringe benefits so common in the United States are unknown in Cuba. On the contrary, Cuban workers are called on to make "voluntary" contributions averaging 17 per cent of their monthly earnings for such projects as government industrialization and the purchase of arms as a defense against "Yankee imperialism." In addition, "union" leaders who took over after the Castro seizure of power are continually urging workers to make even more "contributions" for such undertakings as the purchase of cattle for farm cooperatives and the building of a long-promised, but still visionary university.

This is the way communism treats its own citizens. By its own actions regarding minority groups, communism has defined itself as the antithesis of freedom.

NATIONAL HOLIDAYS

No other nation has so splendid a heritage as America. Few other nations now do so little to celebrate and honor their heritage.

This is most obvious when we see and think about what has happened to our national holidays. Older Americans can vividly remember when all were celebrated in the most impressive manner in every community, and each was a great event in the lives of the people.

On Memorial Day, people gathered in large numbers to honor our heroic dead. On Independence Day, they took nearly the whole day and evening to celebrate the winning of our national independence. On Thanksgiving Day, they really did give thanks.

On Columbus Day and on the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, these great men were remembered in terms befitting their imperishable fame.

Now the birthdays of these great men have virtually ceased to exist as holidays, and the others, especially Memorial Day and Independence Day, are known primarily as the occasion for a "holiday weekend" when great numbers of people rush out on the highways and are killed or injured.

The real meaning of our national holidays is fading into mist. Only Christams, the holiday of all Western Christian civilization, still retains much of its old special magic.

America is immeasurably the poorer for this destructive trend. We ought to be proud of our heritage. Many of us still are proud. By celebrating our national holidays in the old way, we would show our pride and pass it on to our children. HLH

QUI NHON, Viet Nam (AP) —Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

This is a city under enemy siege where no American is pushing the panic button.

It is a city haunted by bitter memories and by many refugees. War, the orphan maker, orphans many here daily.

The bitter memories stem from the terrorist bombing last Feb. 10 of the Hotel Viet Cua. Viet Cong agents blew up the four-story building, then being used to quarter enlisted men of an aviation maintenance company. Some 23 Americans were among the 37 killed.

"We worked for 70 hours straight before others arrived to help us," said a survivor. "We had to level the building to get everybody out."

No trace of the hotel now exists. Its site is used as a truck parking lot, and newcomers here pass it by unheeding. But hose who were here then still carry memory scars.

There is only one really safe direction in this key city in the central Vietnamese lowlands between Saigon and Da Nang. That is seaward, for we still control its watery access.

But the area westward from here to Pleiku and the Cambodian and Laotian borders is a heartland of Viet Cong activity. Military leaders worry about the possibility that the enemy might try to snip the country in two along this axis in a dare-all gamble.

Qui Nhon, rebuilt since it was razed and looted in 1945, is a neat-looking city of French colonial design. Its streets are wide and well kept.

But it has become a city of tragedy and mass misery. Refugees flocking in for safety from outlying villages have nearly doubled its normal population of 50,000.

Its plight only reflects the situation throughout the province of Binh Dinh, which is the second largest of South Viet Nam's 44 provinces, and its most populous area with the exception of Saigon.

A large percentage of the refugees are Roman Catholics and strongly anti-Communist. Most have chosen to uproot their lives and flee here rather than cooperate with the guerrillas in their native villages.

The refugees are huddled in 25 camps throughout the province. One of the seven camps here houses 10,000 homeless men, women and children.

They dwell behind barbed wire in abject conditions. They are fed and given what clothing is available and about five cents a day each to care for their other needs. Disease flourishes.

A tale to be taken with a grain of salt:

Millions of propaganda leaflets have been dropped in enemy territory in hope of spreading disunity in the ranks of the Viet Cong.

One defector turned up carrying a bundle of the leaflets.

A psychological warfare officer questioned him as to whether his mind had been swayed by the leaflets.

"No, I can't read or write," said the defector. "My commander ordered me to go around and pick up all these pieces of paper — and I just got tired of doing it."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — A lobbying battle of great interest to housewives is now being waged over the future price of bread. It will also affect over a million farmers.

About 50 big baking companies, plus two baking unions, have retained as their lobbyist Maurice Rosenblatt, mainspring of the Committee for an Effective Congress, who has raised thousands of dollars to elect new congressmen. He has helped finance some of the most crusading liberals in Congress. Naturally they feel under obligation to him.

However, Rosenblatt is now working to defeat the Johnson Administration's farm bill as the registered lobbyist for such giants of the baking-biscuit world as National Biscuit, Continental Baking, Ralston-Purina, United Biscuit, Pillsbury Flour, Sunshine Biscuits, Kellogg, General Baking, Interstate Baking, the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union, Confectionery Workers International, and about 40 other companies associated with the baking industry.

Rosenblatt, an able young man who has led many important battles for the public interest, makes no secret of his campaign to defeat the Johnson farm bill.

"I am the registered lobbyist for the Wheat Users Committee," he says. "I am not wearing my hat as a member of the Committee for an Effective Congress. I cleared my work, however, with the Committee."

—DIAMONDS IS BREAD—

At issue is Rosenblatt's and the big baking comapnies' claim that the new farm bill will cost the housewife two cents a loaf more for bread. And some congressmen are raising their eyebrows at the political repercussions if they vote to decrease the price of diamonds and the cost of country club dues by removing excise taxes, then turn around and increase the price of bread.

Agricultural officials, however, deny that the farm bill will increase the price of bread more than 7-10 of one cent and claim this can and should be absorbed by the millers and bakers.

The farmer, argues the Department of Agriculture, has been getting it in the neck from the middlemen, in this case the bakers and millers, for years. And officials produce some rather convincing figures to prove it.

In the past 15 to 18 years the cost of flour on the farm has not increased. Bakers can still buy wheat on the farm for the same price today as they paid in the late 1940's. But over the same period, the cost of a loaf of bread to the housewife has about doubled. It's gone up from 13.5 cents to 21 to 31 cents.

In brief, the millers, the bakers, and the bakers unions have almost doubled their share of the cost of bread, while the farmer receives exactly the same amount.

—SQUEEZE ON SMALL FARMER—

Meanwhile the cost of farm labor has gone up at least 50 per cent while the cost of tractors, other farm machinery has almost doubled.

Accordingly, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has argued that it's time for both the farm middleman and labor to loosen up their take and pass a part of their profit on to the farmer. Instead, the big bakers' lobby, headed by Rosenblatt, wants to pass not merely 7-10 of one cent on to the housewife, but more than double that amount — namely, two cents, on the cost of a loaf of bread.

The new farm bill would give farmers a price of 100 per cent of parity on domestic wheat, through a certificate plan whereby part of the support price would be paid by the millers and wheat users. Hence the howl by the millers and their retention of lobbyist Rosenblatt.

The bill is geared to help the small family firms, most of which raise about 15 acres of wheat as a small cash crop. If the farm bill fails, more and more family farms will go to the wall and wheat raising will be concentrated in the hands of a few thousand factory-type farms.

—IRON-HANDED CONGRESSMAN—

There was an ironic and inaccurate aftermath to the big fund-raising dinner which President Johnson addressed last month.

His main message was of praise for the 89th Congress. But when the local headlines came out back in Youngstown, Ohio, they made it appear that the President was praising 79-year-old Rep. Mike Kirwan, the Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, who heads the Committee for the Reelection of Democratic Congressmen.

He did nothing of the kind.

This recalls an interesting bit of history. It was Lyndon Johnson, as a young congressman from Texas, who took hold of the Democratic Congressional Committee in 1940 and really made it zing. Before that, Rep. Pat Drewry of Virginia had been a charming, complacent chairman.

When Johnson took over in the presidential elections of 1940, he showed what could be done by raising money for congressmen in election trouble. And when Lyndon turned to other things, including the Navy, Kirwan took over the committee and has ruled it with an iron and selfish hand ever since. If you vote for Kirwan's bills, including his famous $10,000,-000 fish aquarium, he'll allocate campaign funds to help your election. If you don't, you starve for campaign funds.

Inside Labor

Johnson, at Unique, Off-the-Record White House Dinner, Hears Nation's 'Civilian' Leaders Predict Prosperous Years.

Washington, D. C. -- President Johnson ran a reverse teach-in dinner the other night. It was unique right down to the grape cheese. It was full of surprises, but went unreported, though the State dining room was filled with many of the nation's most influential men.

The guests ranged all the way from Socialist A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, to the staid Roger Blough, chairman of the board of U. S. Steel. All agreed the U. S. was a fine place to live in, and the dollar was sound, and this land is winning the battle of the balance of payments -- meaning we're now beginning to pour less money into the world and getting back more than in the past.

What made the filet of beef banquet unique was Mr. Johnson's new technique in getting the men to stand up and tell him bluntly what they had on their minds.

As each of the 60 business and labor leaders left the cocktail room for the dinner hall, they drew numbers and their seats. There were ten tables, each with ten chairs.

At each table in addition to some member of the Cabinet or vital federal bureau, was a bright young chap out of one of the government services. He was the host. Sort of a table social director to make certain the men of industry and the chiefs of labor got around to a first-name basis.

As they were seated, a waiter came around to each table with a bowl. In it were ten slips. This was as gingerly handled as though it were a bottle of Marquis de Montesque Armagnac. On one of the slips there appeared the word "Speaker." On the other nine was written "Writer."

Thus no one knew in advance what his role was to be. The guest who drew the "speaker" slip was expected to rise and shine -- with any comment on or critique of the domestic economy or any suggestions for keeping the prosperity and swinging the balance of payments in America's favor.

The nine at each table who drew the "writer" slips were asked to send their thoughts and proposals along to the President, on paper, after they returned home.

But the speakers had to hold their fire until they had heard the President, Secretary of the Treasury Fowler, Secy. of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secy. of Commerce Connor, and a string of other specialists tell them that now the basic domestic issue is cutting down the money this country is pouring out into the world and getting more back in.

Some of those who were there for the off-the-record stag dinner that night, June 22, talked of the session as a blend of evangelism, teach-in-ism and fraternalism among men who sometimes do battle on the nation's social and political fronts.

There was the moment when A. Philip Randolph, veteran Negro leader, arose, "speaker" slip in hand. Rarely if ever has "Phil" Randolph unleashed a speech in his sonorous voice -- especially in front of American Presidents -- without reference to the civil rights revolution. Yet that night, for the first time in over 50 years, he put aside the struggle of his people.

He urged the President to give strong financial support to the nation's railroads. He spoke of the need for revitalizing them with federal aid. Eloquently, the head of the Sleeping Car Porters talked of the imagination and daring the early railroad builders had shown in spanning the land. Now he said the time had come for the government to help them survive.

He was followed by husky, blond, Viking - like Paul Hall, leader of the Seafarers International Union. Hall told the President bluntly that some of the government officials were breaking a pledge which Mr. Johnson himself had given when the labor people agreed to load wheat on ships for Russia.

Mr. Johnson had promised that 50 per cent of the shipment would be dispatched in America freighters. Now some presidential advisers were urging that Russia be permitted to buy wheat here and have it shipped in rate-cutting foreign vessels, beyond the 50-50 agreement, just to lower the cost to the U.S.S.R. The President made a note.

Another speaker rose. He was Henry Ford. He had just returned from Europe. The dollar was sound, he had found. The country was sound. And so it went.

All agreed that voluntary action had closed the floodgates on the outflow of American money. And that things would get better despite the war in Asia.

The President got his consensus on the home front -- general agreement that prosperous years were ahead.

The Daily Sikeston Standard

C. L. BLANTON, Jr., Managing Editor, Entered at the Postoffice of Sikeston, Scott County, Missouri as Second Class Mail Matter according to Act of Congress March 3, 1879, Saturday, February 4th, 1960.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Friday, July 2 Peter Sthrone goes to sleep in a tub of vaseline and wakes up oily next morning.

* * *

Traffic lights in the business section of Sikeston switch on at 7 a.m. This isn't early enough.

The density of traffic between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. appears to be heavy enough to justify switching on the stop and go signals at 5 a.m. or perhaps earlier.

City officials needn't take our word for it or do they have to resort to their own opinions or observations.

It should be easy to undertake a traffic study to determine the need -- if one exists scientifically.

Early morning traffic is particularly heavy on Malone Avenue and at its intersections with Kingshighway and New Madrid streets. There may be other bottlenecks.

In the absence of traffic lights, motorists on Malone speed through these intersections as if they had the right-of-way and maybe by custom they do.

This makes entering Malone hazardous for motorists on Kingshighway and New Madrid. They cannot depend on cars traveling on Malone to slow down or stop at intervals to let them through.

Waits occasionally are necessary. As far as pedestrians are concerned it is a bad time to be crossing the street with both through and turning traffic attempting to move rapidly through the intersections.

The stop and go lights provide both motorists and pedestrians with some protection and discipline and encourage a better paced and more orderly flow of vehicle traffic. Those who become accustomed to them discover that they miss them when they aren't in operation.

Other Sikeston streets by custom have become through streets. One of these is Murray Lane. A motorist entering Murray Lane had better stop first unless he wants to endanger himself and his vehicle.

Since motorists on Murray Lane take the right-of-way, stationary stop or yield signs should be placed at all intersections as a safety measure.

There probably are other streets in this same category. A traffic survey would reveal these and other hazards and corrective measures could be taken.

Local driving customs are difficult if not impossible for a city's visitor or newcomer to interpret readily.

Everything should be spelled out for him in adequate signs written in clear, understandable English and big enough for him to read at a glance.

THE INJURIOUS FOURTH

"Cracker balls" are fireworks that look so much like candy that children are tempted to bite into them. When the crackers explode they inflict bad mouth burns. The U. S. Food and Drug Administration in late June filed suit in federal court in Baltimore against distribution of 48 cases of these deceptive firecrackers found at a plant in Elkton, Md.

This is just another reminder that bootlegging of firecrackers is big business, despite state and federal laws. The sale and use of fireworks are restricted in 28 states to authorized public displays, and almost every state polices sale of fireworks in some fashion. Public Law 385, adopted by Congress in 1954, supports the state legislation by prohibiting the transportation of fireworks into states where their sale is illegal, much as federal law forbids shipment of liquor into a state which is legally dry.

But the Senate Junvenile Delinquency subcommittee in hearings two years ago developed major abuses in what the chairman, Sen. Thomas A. Dodd (D Conn.), described as a multi-million dollar industry. One manufacturer in Maryland did a more than $500,000-a-year business in making plastic cherry bombs. Subcommittee tests were said to prove that these bombs are capable of shattering a man's skull or blowing off a man's fingers.

Traffic in fireworks is aided by legal idiosyncracies. Maryland does forbid the sale but not the manufacture of fireworks, for example. A Baltimore fire marshal told the subcommittee two years ago of a stand owner on the District of Columbia side of the District-Maryland line who netted $3000 in two days of pre-Fourth of July sales.

The Fourth, on the strength of recent legislation, is a good deal saner than it used to be, but it's a long way from being perfectly safe.

FARM SAFETY MEANS SUCCESS

That old phrase, "Oh, for the peace and quiet of the country," is probably used often in today's busy world, but a second look might show that the farm isn't always so peaceful.

One sure way to convince yourself it isn't is to take a long look at the accident tolls: an estimated 8,400 deaths and 780,000 injuries to farm residents last year, according to the National Safety Council.

Sounds a little incredible? Well, it's not. Each day many farmers work in the fields or in the barn, and suddenly somehow, sometime during the workday are injured or killed. Not only can an injury disrupt one or two workdays, but a permanent injury or death can totally change an entire farm or farm family.

The farm picture is constantly changing. With new machinery, chemicals and methods, it is a challenge to learn how to utilize them all safely. Unless you carry this new knowledge through in everyday practice, you are not fulfilling your responsibility to yourself and your family. You might, for example, know everything about a machine, but allow a boy barely able to reach the controls to handle a tractor.

What can safe farming mean to you? Success.

THE LUSH AND LAZY SEASON

Summer, the lush and lazy season, is here. The date-line on this page clearly shows that, and it is confirmed by the thermometer. Not only youthful poets, dreaming by haunted streams, praise the joy and beauty that the season brings. After ample rain, the foliage on trees and shrubs is lush. Birds are cheerful on the boughs. Flowers--day lilies, feverfew, yarrow, daisies, buttercups--are bright as Joseph's coat and rich in the promise of more to bloom. The grass is thick and soft as velvet and green as emerald. Ozark streams are running fast, lacy around the rocks and placid in the deep holes. Beside the pool, the sun is tanning warm. Oh, the season's lush from the beginning. But lazy?

Keeping all that foliage within bounds already has taken hours and hours of work with saw and pruning shears. The splendor of the flowers cost more hours of weeding, cultivating and spraying. And it has been necessary to mow the lawn almost every other day. As for getting to the Current or Eleven Point, highway driving is not for the lazy. It's rough even to get to and from the ball park. As for tan, don't forget the grease; and who cleans the pool? Just as Mr. Emerson said a long time ago: "Do what we can, summer will have its flies. If we walk in the woods, we must feed mosquitoes."

But for those who would not surrender--at least not so early--the dream of a season of languor, to New England fact-finding, there is verse enough about skies darkly blue, and days still and bright. And there's Henry James saying to Edith Wharton: "Summer afternoon--summer afternoon; to me those always have been the two most beautiful words in the English language."

A WORTHWHILE JOB

Each year the American Meat Institute presents its Vesta Awards to editors of outstanding newspaper food pages. This year five of these editors took the honors. They represented newspapers published in small cities and large. Each editor was given a statutte of Vesta, mythological goddess of hearth and home. The judges were leading authorities in fields including home economics and nutrition.

The awards represent a thoroughly - deserved recognition of important journalistic work, The food editor is permanently concerned with down-to-earth reader service. His function is to evalue and present new ideas and new variants on the old. Just about every housewife is constantly in search of better, more attractive ways to feed the family. And the newspaper, along with her row of cookbooks, is an invaluable aid.

More than that, the good food editor helps advance the standards of public health. In late years there have been recurrent waves of food faddism which, in the view of nutritional scientists and the medical fraternity, are a menace to mental and physical well-being. The food editor knows that the health-building diet, as well as the most succulent diet, consists of age-old elements -- meats, fruits, grains, vegetables, and the rest, each in proper proportion. His job -- and a highly worthwhile job it is -- is to show the reader how a sound diet can be followed, day after day, in virtually limitless variety.

MINORITY GROUPS, THE FIRST VICTIMS

There is a growing awareness in the United States that minority groups are the first victims in any country where communism takes over. The latest example of this awareness is the call by Jewish leaders to mobilize opinion in behalf of Jews being persecuted in the Soviet Union. The harsh anti-Semitism practiced by communist leaders is a fact of life in Russia today.

The persecution of three million Soviet Jews has aroused Jewish leaders to seek equal religious rights for Russian Jews.

Other minorities in communist countries have also felt the hard lash of communist tyranny. The Christian missionaries and many converts in China suffered great hardships from the time the communists took over that country. In recent months, African students in communist countries in Europe have been discriminated against; denied the right of protest; and even held in custody while wishing to return to their homes.

This is the way communism treats its own citizens. By its own actions regarding minority groups, communism has defined itself as the antithesis of freedom.

On Memorial Day, people gathered in large numbers to honor our heroic dead. On Independence Day, they took nearly the whole day and evening to celebrate the winning of our national independence. On Thanksgiving Day, they really did give thanks.

On Columbus Day and on the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, these great men were remembered in terms befitting their imperishable fame.

Now the birthdays of these great men have virtually ceased to exist as holidays, and the others, especially Memorial Day and Independence Day, are known primarily as the occasion for a "holiday weekend" when great numbers of people rush out on the highways and are killed or injured.

The real meaning of our national holidays is fading into mist. Only Christams, the holiday of all Western Christian civilization, still retains much of its old special magic.

America is immeasurably the poorer for this destructive trend. We ought to be proud of our heritage. Many of us still are proud. By celebrating our national holidays in the old way, we would show our pride and pass it on to our children. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Johnson, at Unique, Off-the-Record White House Dinner, Hears Nation's 'Civilian' Leaders Predict Prosperous Years.

Washington, D. C. -- President Johnson ran a reverse teach-in dinner the other night. It was unique right down to the grape cheese. It was full of surprises, but went unreported, though the State dining room was filled with many of the nation's most influential men.

The guests ranged all the way from Socialist A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, to the staid Roger Blough, chairman of the board of U. S. Steel. All agreed the U. S. was a fine place to live in, and the dollar was sound, and this land is winning the battle of the balance of payments -- meaning we're now beginning to pour less money into the world and getting back more than in the past.

What made the filet of beef banquet unique was Mr. Johnson's new technique in getting the men to stand up and tell him bluntly what they had on their minds.

As each of the 60 business and labor leaders left the cocktail room for the dinner hall, they drew numbers and their seats. There were ten tables, each with ten chairs.

At each table in addition to some member of the Cabinet or vital federal bureau, was a bright young chap out of one of the government services. He was the host. Sort of a table social director to make certain the men of industry and the chiefs of labor got around to a first-name basis.

As they were seated, a waiter came around to each table with a bowl. In it were ten slips. This was as gingerly handled as though it were a bottle of Marquis de Montesque Armagnac. On one of the slips there appeared the word "Speaker." On the other nine was written "Writer."

Thus no one knew in advance what his role was to be. The guest who drew the "speaker" slip was expected to rise and shine -- with any comment on or critique of the domestic economy or any suggestions for keeping the prosperity and swinging the balance of payments in America's favor.

The nine at each table who drew the "writer" slips were asked to send their thoughts and proposals along to the President, on paper, after they returned home.

But the speakers had to hold their fire until they had heard the President, Secretary of the Treasury Fowler, Secy. of Labor Willard Wirtz, Secy. of Commerce Connor, and a string of other specialists tell them that now the basic domestic issue is cutting down the money this country is pouring out into the world and getting more back in.

Some of those who were there for the off-the-record stag dinner that night, June 22, talked of the session as a blend of evangelism, teach-in-ism and fraternalism among men who sometimes do battle on the nation's social and political fronts.

There was the moment when A. Philip Randolph, veteran Negro leader, arose, "speaker" slip in hand. Rarely if ever has "Phil" Randolph unleashed a speech in his sonorous voice -- especially in front of American Presidents--without reference to the civil rights revolution. Yet that night, for the first time in over 50 years, he put aside the struggle of his people.

He urged the President to give strong financial support to the nation's railroads. He spoke of the need for revitalizing them with federal aid. Eloquently, the head of the Sleeping Car Porters talked of the imagination and daring the early railroad builders had shown in spanning the land. Now he said the time had come for the government to help them survive.

He was followed by husky, blond, Viking - like Paul Hall, leader of the Seafarers International Union. Hall told the President bluntly that some of the government officials were breaking a pledge which Mr. Johnson himself had given when the labor people agreed to load wheat on ships for Russia.

Mr. Johnson had promised that 50 per cent of the shipment would be dispatched in America freighters. Now some presidential advisers were urging that Russia be permitted to buy wheat here and have it shipped in rate-cutting foreign vessels, beyond the 50-50 agreement, just to lower the cost to the U.S.S.R. The President made a note.

Another speaker rose. He was Henry Ford. He had just returned from Europe. The dollar was sound, he had found. The country was sound. And so it went.

All agreed that voluntary action had closed the floodgates on the outflow of American money. And that things would get better despite the war in Asia.

The President got his consensus on the home front -- general agreement that prosperous years were ahead.

QUI NHON, Viet Nam (AP) —Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

This is a city under enemy siege where no American is pushing the panic button.

It is a city haunted by bitter memories and by many refugees. War, the orphan maker, orphans many here daily.

The bitter memories stem from the terrorist bombing last Feb. 10 of the Hotel Viet Cua. Viet Cong agents blew up the four-story building, then being used to quarter enlisted men of an aviation maintenance company. Some 23 Americans were among the 37 killed.

"We worked for 70 hours straight before others arrived to help us," said a survivor. "We had to level the building to get everybody out."

No trace of the hotel now exists. Its site is used as a truck parking lot, and newcomers here pass it by unheeding. But hose who were here then still carry memory scars.

There is only one really safe direction in this key city in the central Vietnamese lowlands between Saigon and Da Nang. That is seaward, for we still control its watery access.

But the area westward from here to Pleiku and the Cambodian and Laotian borders is a heartland of Viet Cong activity. Military leaders worry about the possibility that the enemy might try to snip the country in two along this axis in a dare-all gamble.

Qui Nhon, rebuilt since it was razed and looted in 1945, is a neat-looking city of French colonial design. Its streets are wide and well kept.

But it has become a city of tragedy and mass misery. Refugees flocking in for safety from outlying villages have nearly doubled its normal population of 50,000.

Its plight only reflects the situation throughout the province of Binh Dinh, which is the second largest of South Viet Nam's 44 provinces, and its most populous area with the exception of Saigon.

A large percentage of the refugees are Roman Catholics and strongly anti-Communist. Most have chosen to uproot their lives and flee here rather than cooperate with the guerrillas in their native villages.

The refugees are huddled in 25 camps throughout the province. One of the seven camps here houses 10,000 homeless men, women and children.

They dwell behind barbed wire in abject conditions. They are fed and given what clothing is available and about five cents a day each to care for their other needs. Disease flourishes.

A tale to be taken with a grain of salt:

Millions of propaganda leaflets have been dropped in enemy territory in hope of spreading disunity in the ranks of the Viet Cong.

One defector turned up carrying a bundle of the leaflets.

A psychological warfare officer questioned him as to whether his mind had been swayed by the leaflets.

"No, I can't read or write," said the defector. "My commander ordered me to go around and pick up all these pieces of paper — and I just got tired of doing it."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — A lobbying battle of great interest to housewives is now being waged over the future price of bread. It will also affect over a million farmers.

About 50 big baking companies, plus two baking unions, have retained as their lobbyist Maurice Rosenblatt, mainspring of the Committee for an Effective Congress, who has raised thousands of dollars to elect new congressmen. He has helped finance some of the most crusading liberals in Congress. Naturally they feel under obligation to him.

However, Rosenblatt is now working to defeat the Johnson Administration's farm bill as the registered lobbyist for such giants of the baking-biscuit world as National Biscuit, Continental Baking, Ralston-Purina, United Biscuit, Pillsbury Flour, Sunshine Biscuits, Kellogg, General Baking, Interstate Baking, the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union, Confectionery Workers International, and about 40 other companies associated with the baking industry.

Rosenblatt, an able young man who has led many important battles for the public interest, makes no secret of his campaign to defeat the Johnson farm bill.

"I am the registered lobbyist for the Wheat Users Committee," he says. "I am not wearing my hat as a member of the Committee for an Effective Congress. I cleared my work, however, with the Committee."

—DIAMONDS IS BREAD—

At issue is Rosenblatt's and the big baking comapnies' claim that the new farm bill will cost the housewife two cents a loaf more for bread. And some congressmen are raising their eyebrows at the political repercussions if they vote to decrease the price of diamonds and the cost of country club dues by removing excise taxes, then turn around and increase the price of bread.

Agricultural officials, however, deny that the farm bill will increase the price of bread more than 7-10 of one cent and claim this can and should be absorbed by the millers and bakers.

The farmer, argues the Department of Agriculture, has been getting it in the neck from the middlemen, in this case the bakers and millers, for years. And officials produce some rather convincing figures to prove it.

In the past 15 to 18 years the cost of flour on the farm has not increased. Bakers can still buy wheat on the farm for the same price today as they paid in the late 1940's. But over the same period, the cost of a loaf of bread to the housewife has about doubled. It's gone up from 13.5 cents to 21 to 31 cents.

In brief, the millers, the bakers, and the bakers unions have almost doubled their share of the cost of bread, while the farmer receives exactly the same amount.

—SQUEEZE ON SMALL FARMER—

Meanwhile the cost of farm labor has gone up at least 50 per cent while the cost of tractors, other farm machinery has almost doubled.

Accordingly, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has argued that it's time for both the farm middleman and labor to loosen up their take and pass a part of their profit on to the farmer. Instead, the big bakers' lobby, headed by Rosenblatt, wants to pass not merely 7-10 of one cent on to the housewife, but more than double that amount — namely, two cents, on the cost of a loaf of bread.

The new farm bill would give farmers a price of 100 per cent of parity on domestic wheat, through a certificate plan whereby part of the support price would be paid by the millers and wheat users. Hence the howl by the millers and their retention of lobbyist Rosenblatt.

The bill is geared to help the small family firms, most of which raise about 15 acres of wheat as a small cash crop. If the farm bill fails, more and more family farms will go to the wall and wheat raising will be concentrated in the hands of a few thousand factory-type farms.

—IRON-HANDED CONGRESSMAN—

There was an ironic and inaccurate aftermath to the big fund-raising dinner which President Johnson addressed last month.

His main message was of praise for the 89th Congress. But when the local headlines came out back in Youngstown, Ohio, they made it appear that the President was praising 79-year-old Rep. Mike Kirwan, the Youngstown, Ohio, Democrat, who heads the Committee for the Reelection of Democratic Congressmen.

He did nothing of the kind.

This recalls an interesting bit of history. It was Lyndon Johnson, as a young congressman from Texas, who took hold of the Democratic Congressional Committee in 1940 and really made it zing. Before that, Rep. Pat Drewry of Virginia had been a charming, complacent chairman.

When Johnson took over in the presidential elections of 1940, he showed what could be done by raising money for congressmen in election trouble. And when Lyndon turned to other things, including the Navy, Kirwan took over the committee and has ruled it with an iron and selfish hand ever since. If you vote for Kirwan's bills, including his famous $10,000,000 fish aquarium, he'll allocate campaign funds to help your election. If you don't, you starve for campaign funds.

The Modern Christian

How do we know that God is interested in man today?

In the New Testament, we observe Christ's human thoughts and actions that reflect the mystery of His Person.

He is the Word who speaks continually of His Father. His whole Person is to speak the Father, wherein man will ultimately find his eternal home.

Christ says that His mission is to reveal the Father to men and to bring men back to the Father.

We have to realize then that the Risen Christ living in the Christian community is a constant sign of His Father.

It is so easy to merely speak of these things. Christ is the Son of God and He became Man; what else could one want to know? Such matters can not be passed off so easily.

God created the world. He became involved in the whole business of human life. The impact of God's decision is continual and operative in man today. Each person has to constantly refine his idea of what God is.

We think of Christianity as the best form of religion. There are other religions, but what Christians often fail to grasp is the uniqueness of their faith.

That a real personal God is interested in making friends with us is absolutely incredible. That we might enter into that friendship, He gives us the power to respond to His invitation.

Our return note of acceptance to His invitation is hallmarked by three basic words: faith, hope, and love. However, they are more than mere words. They are the work of the Risen Christ in men, bringing them through this busy world to the Father.

The Risen Christ is seen as continual and operative in man, in so far as man answers the Father's invitation by faith, hope, and love.

The historical Christ and the Risen Christ are the same Christ. God the Father has not removed the presence of His Son from the midst of men. It is not the century in which one lives that is decisive, but one's response of faith, hope, and love.

The Modern Christian

How do we know that God is interested in man today?

In the New Testament, we observe Christ's human thoughts and actions that reflect the mystery of His Person.

He is the Word who speaks continually of His Father. His whole Person is to speak the Father, wherein man will ultimately find his eternal home.

Christ says that His mission is to reveal the Father to men and to bring men back to the Father.

We have to realize then that the Risen Christ living in the Christian community is a constant sign of His Father.

It is so easy to merely speak of these things. Christ is the Son of God and He became Man; what else could one want to know? Such matters can not be passed off so easily.

God created the world. He became involved in the whole business of human life. The impact of God's decision is continual and operative in man today. Each person has to constantly refine his idea of what God is.

We think of Christianity as the best form of religion. There are other religions, but what Christians often fail to grasp is the uniqueness of their faith.

That a real personal God is interested in making friends with us is absolutely incredible. That we might enter into that friendship, He gives us the power to respond to His invitation.

Our return note of acceptance to His invitation is hallmarked by three basic words: faith, hope, and love. However, they are more than mere words. They are the work of the Risen Christ in men, bringing them through this busy world to the Father.

The Risen Christ is seen as continual and operative in man, in so far as man answers the Father's invitation by faith, hope, and love.

The historical Christ and the Risen Christ are the same Christ. God the Father has not removed the presence of His Son from the midst of men. It is not the century in which one lives that is decisive, but one's response of faith, hope, and love.

GOLF NOTES

There has been a great deal of golf activity in Sikeston and the surrounding area recently.

Last Friday fourteen Sikeston ladies journeyed to Charleston for golf and one of those home cooked luncheons that the ladies of that club always provide. It was greatly enjoyed by all present.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Jackson Davis and Mrs. Stan Bush were hostesses for regular play at the Sikeston County Club. There was a good crowd for golf and lunch and the winners were as follows: Championship, Mrs. Ellis Atchison; A flight, Mrs. Gene Dawson; B flight, Mrs. David Bowman and C flight, Mrs. Joe Leslie. Mrs. Bob Nowell is a new member.

A group of ladies were in Poplar Bluff on Tuesday and Wednesday to participate in the Southeast Missouri Tournament. Mrs. Glen Joyner was the second place winner in the A flight. Mrs. Moose, Mrs. Frank Armstrong and Mrs. Dewey Urban were also winners.

Potlatch Edges Scott City

Payne Saves Game

Sikeston's Potlatch Forest and Scott City's Connie Mack team locked up in a duel of the Titans last night at V.F.W. Stadium. Potlatch came out on top of the night's action, with a 3 to 2 victory. The Foresters have now downed Scott City twice. Scott City dealt Potlatch their only defeat of the season.

Potlatch scored their winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning, on two bases on balls and two Scott City errors.

The losing pitcher for Scott City Brant, gave up only four hits in the contest. He struck out 7 Forester hitters and walked three. The Scott City team made four costly errors in the game.

Spears was the winning pitcher for the Sikeston team. He was relieved in the sixth inning by fireman Payne. Payne came in with two men on base and one out. He fanned the last two men, to get the Foresters out of trouble. He went on to fan the three Scott City batters he faced in the top of the seventh. Payne faced five men in the contest and struck out five. Spears worked six and one-third innings, giving up seven hits, fanned three and walked two.

Sports Talk

By DON SAVAGE

The defensive backfield group that finished the 1964 season as the football Cardinals' No. 1 unit has signed for 1965, it was announced today by the Big Red.

The quartet, each member of which scored at least one touchdown during the season, includes corner backs Pat Fischer and Jimmy Burson and safeties Larry Wilson and Jerry Stovall. All will report to the Cardinals' Lake Forest, Illinois, training camp on July 24.

Fischer, who won all-pro honors and was practically a unanimous choice in the Most Valuable Player ballotting by his teammates, will be in his fifth NFL season. The 5-9, 170-pound speedster from Nebraska led the Cardinals with 10 interceptions, a total good for second in the league. He scored three touchdowns during the season, returning an interception for a touchdown in each of the victories over Washington, and dashing 49 yards with a recovered fumble to provide the winning score in the 21-20 verdict over Pittsburgh.

Wilson, veteran of the group, will be starting his sixth campaign. The Poplar Idahoan, a graduate of the University of Utah, is well-recognized around the NFL as an outstanding free safety. He picked off three passes during the year, returning one 42 yards for a score against the Eagles, and also holds the ball on conversion and field goal attempts.

Stovall, the Big Red's No. 1 draft choice after a brilliant college career, stepped into the starting lineup as a rookie in 1963 and has not been displaced. He intercepted three passes last year, returning one for a touchdown against the Eagles, and also scored on an interception against Green Bay in the NFL Playoff Bowl. The 6-2, 205-pound Stovall also paced the Cardinals in kickoff returns, running back 24 for 566 yards.

Burson, who stepped into the starting lineup late in the season, came fast as the year progressed, making key defensive plays and interceptions. He intercepted three passes and, though he didn't score that way, tallied on a 68-yard punt return against the San Francisco 49ers. He averaged 10.4 yards a return on 12 returns during the season.

Jaycees took the win by clobbering Lions 5-0. The powerful Jaycee squad was headed in not only pitching, but hitting by Craig. Craig, the star of the night, slugged two fast balls over the fence for two of the runs scored by their team. Jones also helped Craig in the home run field as he pounded one over the fence to add up another run for the winners. He also had another hit for the night--a double.

Crader, catcher for Lions, hit the ball for a single to keep Craig from hurling a no hitter. The losing pitcher was Wooley who gave up 10 hits and 5 runs.

Cards Down Bucs 7 to 6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It wasn't really a St. Louis rally, but rather a complete collapse by the Pirates' Bob Veale that permitted the Cardinals four runs on one hit in the eighth when Veale went wild. He gave up a single to pinch hitter Bill White, then walked three batters, hit two more with pitches and then threw a wild pitch that allowed two runs.

Pinch hitter Bob Skinner was then walked by reliever Don Schwall with the bases loaded to score the fourth run.

An inning later, the Cardinals scored three more runs on Phil Gagliano's single, Dick Groat's sacrifice, Mike Shannon's double, Curt Flood's single and a force play that permitted run No. 7.

The Pirates attempted a rally in their half of the last inning scoring two runs. Sadecki put on the brakes with the final out. They had led from the first inning when they tallied three runs off Curt Simmons on four hits and a walk. Bob Bailey scored the other Pittsburgh run in the seventh.

Hal Woodeshick, one of seven St. Louis pitchers, was credited with the victory -- his fifth against five losses. Joe Gibbon, who now is two and five, was the loser. Pittsburgh used five pitchers.

St. Louis, now with two victories behind them, goes to New York today where Bob Gibson 9-6 will face the Mets' Jack Fisher 6-8.

The Kansas City Athletics idle Thursday, will send John O'Donoghue 4-9 against Minnesota and Jim Grant 7-2 tonight at Kansas City.

Watkins Hurls One-Hitter

Bell City's Olivers surprised no one by capturing the Championship of the New Hamburg softball Tournament, with an easy 6 to 2 victory over Kelso.

Ace hurler Johnny Watkins handcuffed the Kelso team, as he struck out 14 hitters and gave up only one hit in the entire contest.

Centerfielder Doug Kinder and Wayne Cowell were the big hitters for Bell City. Kinder, a long ball hitter, poled two home runs and a single in the game. He also had 4 RBI's in the contest. Cowell had two doubles and 1 RBI. The other Bell City run scored on an error.

The championship trophy was given to Bill Watkins manager of the team. Watkins gave it to Jim Delay, the Oliver's sponsor.

Malone made an attempt to gain the lead in the bottom of the fifth but could only manage one run to bring the score to 8-6. KSIM took 2 more runs in the last inning of play to anchor the win. Malone & Hyde collected two hits and one run in the last to wind up the game 10-7.

Malone & Hyde stayed ahead of their victors in hitting. They chalked up 9 hits compared to the winners 3. Eisenbach led the hitting rampage as he stepped to the plate 4 times and clobbered 4 hits. Byrd and Ryon each had 2 for 4 in the bout for the losers.

Grelle Tops Snell In Run

HELSINKI, Finland, AP--Jim Grelle from Oregon, has parlayed French dynamo Michael Jazy's absence and the form failure of Olympic champion Peter Snell into an American coup in the 1,500 meter run --highlight of the World Track and Field Games.

With Jazy, world record holder at the mile, two miles and 3,000 meters, on the sidelines and Snell unable to mount the pace that made him the world's premier middle distance runner a year ago, the methodical Grelle nipped former Oregon teammate Dryol Burleson in Thursday's 1,500. Snell finished a distant fifth in the comparatively slow race.

Grelle, outsprinting Burleson after the pair caught pacesetter John Davies, Snell's New Zealand countryman with 200 meters to go, was clocked in 3:40.8. Burleson finished in 3:41.4.

The victory gave the American six firsts in the Games.

Payne Saves Game

Sikeston's Potlatch Forest and Scott City's Connie Mack team locked up in a duel of the Titans last night at V.F.W. Stadium. Potlatch came out on top of the night's action, with a 3 to 2 victory. The Foresters have now downed Scott City twice. Scott City dealt Potlatch their only defeat of the season.

Potlatch scored their winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning, on two bases on balls and two Scott City errors.

The losing pitcher for Scott City Brant, gave up only four hits in the contest. He struck out 7 Forester hitters and walked three. The Scott City team made four costly errors in the game.

Spears was the winning pitcher for the Sikeston team. He was relieved in the sixth inning by fireman Payne. Payne came in with two men on base and one out. He fanned the last two men, to get the Foresters out of trouble. He went on to fan the three Scott City batters he faced in the top of the seventh. Payne faced five men in the contest and struck out five. Spears worked six and one-third innings, giving up seven hits, fanned three and walked two.

Sports Talk

By DON SAVAGE

The defensive backfield group that finished the 1964 season as the football Cardinals' No. 1 unit has signed for 1965, it was announced today by the Big Red.

The quartet, each member of which scored at least one touchdown during the season, includes corner backs Pat Fischer and Jimmy Burson and safeties Larry Wilson and Jerry Stovall. All will report to the Cardinals' Lake Forest, Illinois, training camp on July 24.

Fischer, who won all-pro honors and was practically a unanimous choice in the Most Valuable Player ballotting by his teammates, will be in his fifth NFL season. The 5-9, 170-pound speedster from Nebraska led the Cardinals with 10 interceptions, a total good for second in the league. He scored three touchdowns during the season, returning an interception for a touchdown in each of the victories over Washington, and dashing 49 yards with a recovered fumble to provide the winning score in the 21-20 verdict over Pittsburgh.

Wilson, veteran of the group, will be starting his sixth campaign. The Poplar Idahoan, a graduate of the University of Utah, is well-recognized around the NFL as an outstanding free safety. He picked off three passes during the year, returning one 42 yards for a score against the Eagles, and also holds the ball on conversion and field goal attempts.

Stovall, the Big Red's No. 1 draft choice after a brilliant college career, stepped into the starting lineup as a rookie in 1963 and has not been displaced. He intercepted three passes last year, returning one for a touchdown against the Eagles, and also scored on an interception against Green Bay in the NFL Playoff Bowl. The 6-2, 205-pound Stovall also paced the Cardinals in kickoff returns, running back 24 for 566 yards.

Burson, who stepped into the starting lineup late in the season, came fast as the year progressed, making key defensive plays and interceptions. He intercepted three passes and, though he didn't score that way, tallied on a 68-yard punt return against the San Francisco 49ers. He averaged 10.4 yards a return on 12 returns during the season.

Cards Down Bucs 7 to 6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It wasn't really a St. Louis rally, but rather a complete collapse by the Pirates' Bob Veale that permitted the Cardinals four runs on one hit in the eighth when Veale went wild. He gave up a single to pinch hitter Bill White, then walked three batters, hit two more with pitches and then threw a wild pitch that allowed two runs.

Pinch hitter Bob Skinner was then walked by reliever Don Schwall with the bases loaded to score the fourth run.

An inning later, the Cardinals scored three more runs on Phil Gagliano's single, Dick Groat's sacrifice, Mike Shannon's double, Curt Flood's single and a force play that permitted run No. 7.

The Pirates attempted a rally in their half of the last inning scoring two runs. Sadecki put on the brakes with the final out. They had led from the first inning when they tallied three runs off Curt Simmons on four hits and a walk. Bob Bailey scored the other Pittsburgh run in the seventh.

Hal Woodeshick, one of seven St. Louis pitchers, was credited with the victory -- his fifth against five losses. Joe Gibbon, who now is two and five, was the loser. Pittsburgh used five pitchers.

St. Louis, now with two victories behind them, goes to New York today where Bob Gibson 9-6 will face the Mets' Jack Fisher 6-8.

The Kansas City Athletics idle Thursday, will send John O'Donoghue 4-9 against Minnesota and Jim Grant 7-2 tonight at Kansas City.

A & B Oil Co., was downed in the first game last night in the National League by Legions with a score of 5-1. The game began with neither team scoring a run until the bottom of the fourth when Legions pop out two hits and scored 3 baserunners. A & B scored their lone run in the top of the fifth to bring the game to a 3-1 tally. In the bottom of the sixth Legions went on to mark the win with 2 extra runs and 2 extra hits. The final score after six complete innings was Legions 5 and A & B 1.

Shy led the Legions as he pitched an ace ballgame allowing only 2 hits and one run. Dame, with only an inning relief from Dodd, took the loss giving up 5 hits and 5 runs.

Nelson led the game off with one of the two hits that A & B Oil managed. Searbough collected the other in the fourth frame.

Puckett pounded out two hits--one a double. Shy and Runnels had the other two hits for the Legions.

Foreign Affairs Give LBJ Trouble

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Johnson heads into the last half of 1965 his record can also be split in half: very successful at home; a lot of unfinished, dangling overseas business that leaves the world wondering.

His popularity at home is high, the polls say. Overseas he has been criticized for his handling of foreign affairs, particularly in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

He hasn't shown yet the same masterful talent for foreign affairs that he has demonstrated repeatedly in domestic problems.

His relations with Congress, business, labor, and civil rights groups have been excellent and tranquil. In getting Congress to do what he wants he is well on the way to the best record since President Franklin D. Roosevelt's early days.

He talks a lot, some times moralizing, some times in platitudes and some times in a way unmatched by any president, as in a recent speech expressing his compassion (a favorite word of his) for the Negro.

The astonishing energy he has shown in working at his job always has raised the inevitable question: How long can he keep it up?

There is a broad mystification about what to expect in foreign policy where Johnson plays the cards very close. For example: In six months how much deeper might the United States be in the Vietnamese war?

When he went to San Francisco last week to address the 20th anniversary meeting of the United Nations he got a lukewarm reception although the reason is not clear.

Some of the restraint among the statesmen listening to him may have been intended to express disapproval of his foreign actions; some may have been out of disappointment that he didn't come up with new ideas and programs.

President John F. Kennedy, at his death but not in his first few months as chief executive, had a far more shining image abroad than Johnson. But this was after he got off to a bad start by backing the Cuban refugees' disastrous invasion of Cuba.

Yet, Kennedy's policy basically was not much different from Johnson's — except for the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Johnson has been criticized for intervening in the Dominican revolt, a reminder to Latin Americans of the many times this country intervened in their affairs before. They couldn't tell whether they were looking at the beginning of a similar era under Johnson.

But Kennedy got an even worse reaction for the Cuban invasion.

Kennedy had slowly been building up American forces in Viet Nam. It's useless to try to guess now what he would have done eventually if confronted with the situation Johnson faced: Growing conquest by the Viet Cong and steadily developing chaos in South Viet Nam which, without American help, would have collapsed long ago.

There have been scattered, but comparatively few, critical voices against Johnson in Congress. Will this last?

Laboratories Working In Unusual Nonweapons Field

LOS ALAMOS, N. M. AP-- During World War II years when the first atomic bombs were being secretly made in this mountain hideaway, one of the rumors in distant towns concerning what the scientists were up to was this:

"They're making windshield wipers for submarines."

Today, the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission makes no secret of the fact that it, and another laboratory at Livermore, are the places where all the nation's bombs, missiles and other nuclear arms are created.

Even so, some pretty unusual, nonweapons activities are going on at both laboratories.

These include:

1. The quest to harness the fearsome hydrogen bomb reaction for peacetime electricity production -- a quest which was pioneered at Los Alamos in a machine dubbed the "perhapsatron."

3. The "Rover Project" -- The dream of using nuclear reactors to propel spacecraft to distant planets, perhaps at speeds approaching the velocity of light, instead of using conventional chemical boosters.

3. "Plowshare" -- The Program aimed at using nuclear power in a range from manufacturing new elements and increasing the flow of natural gas deep underground to carving out canals and harbors on the earth's surface.

The two men who are most immediately responsible for keeping America's nuclear arsenal stocked with the very best in the weapons field are Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, director of the Los Alamos lab, and Dr. John Foster, director at Livermore, which is a branch of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley.

Bradbury was one of the developers of the original A-bombs in those hush-hush days when the Army took over an exclusive boys ranch school and built a secret city around it.

Bradbury says weapons still constitute at least 50 per cent of the lab's effort, and that "if the chips were down" -- and war was on or imminent -- his entire staff of 7,000 would be working full blast on the exclusive effort of producing even more powerful, efficient and sophisticated weapons.

From the start of discussions leading up to the signing of the limited nuclear test ban treaty --which outlaws all but underground testing--Bradbury was convinced that such a move offered the "possibility of taking the first real, even if small, step in the direction of the prevention of a nuclear war."

And he says "We've learned to test underground successfully."

The Atomic Energy Commission, in formal reports, has said that "significant progress" has been made in both offensive and defensive nuclear capability during the period of underground testing.

Foster was at first vigorously opposed to calling off atmospheric nuclear tests.

He argued, in testimony before congressional committees, that the elimination of atmospheric tests would disadvantage the United States more than Russia.

He says his fears have been eased somewhat by the relatively rapid pace of America's underground testing and by what he terms clear evidence that the laboratories have continued to maintain top people and vigorous programs.

Foster also says that the treaty --which stipulates that radioactivity from underground tests be kept within the territorial limits of the testing country-- is "preventing us from proceeding as vigorously as we otherwise might" with canal-digging and kindred potential applications of the Plowshare program.

"We're doing our best," he said, "to 'clear up' nuclear explosives so that the radioactivity will be lessened.

"But, as for exploding, say, 100 kilotons -- the equivalent of 100,000 tons of TNT -- to produce craters for something like the Panama Canal, we can't do this today without violating the treaty--at least as it's being interpreted by the United States."

However, Foster and other AEC "Plowshare" experts make clear that even under strictest interpretation of the treaty, many valuable lessons can be learned from cratering experiments of more modest explosive yields.

They also point out that deep-underground Plowshare tests-- the ones involving no cratering at all--offer rich potential for yeilding other peacetime benefits for man. These would include such possibilities as releasing oil from shale deposits difficult to tap by conventional techniques.

Ask Suggestions For Next M. U. President

COLUMBIA -- The board of curators of the University of Missouri has named a screening committee to make recommendations to the board for appointment of a new president to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellis when he retires as president of the University System in August of 1966.

Dr. Ellis reaches 65, the retirement age for administrative officers of the University, in July of 1966.

The committee consists of three curators, a representative of the alumni of the University, and a representative of the faculty. The curators on the committee are Robert Neill, St. Louis; Oliver B. Ferguson, Fredericktown, and William H. Billings, Kennett; Justice James A. Finch, Jr., of the Supreme Court of Missouri in Jefferson City; and Dr. A. G. Unklesbay, professor of geology at the University in Columbia.

Neill, president of the board, is chairman of the committee.

The committee had an organizational meeting in St. Louis and announced that it would receive suggestions from members of the faculty, alumni, and other friends of the University. It asks that suggestions be submitted in writing to the chairman or any other member of the University of Missouri screening committee.

Dr. Ellis was appointed the thirteenth President of the University of Missouri on April 16, 1955, after serving several months as acting president. He had been dean of the faculty of the College of Arts and Science since 1946. He joined the faculty in 1930 as assistant professor of history, and later advanced to professor of history, a title he still holds.

During his administration as president, the University has developed into a Statewide University system with major campuses at Rolla, Kansas City, and St. Louis as well as at Columbia, each of them under a chancellor responsible to the president. The four campuses had a combined total enrollment of more than 27,000 students this year.

President Ellis has served on many national and international committees and commissions. During 1963-64 he was president of the National Association of State Universities and Land - Grant Colleges, and 1958 - 62 was a member of the Board of Foreign Scholarships of the U. S. Department of State.

He is president of the board of directors of the Harry S. Truman Library Institute for National and International Affairs in Independence; secretary of the American Council on Education; president of the National Commission on Accrediting; a member of the President's Board of the William Rockhill Nelson Trust of Kansas City; a member of the executive committee of the Missouri School of Religion in Columbia; co-chairman of the Missouri Commission for Education Beyond the High School; and past president of the Missouri Association of Colleges and Universities. He also helped organize and served as president of the Mid - America Association of State Universities.

During World War II he served in the historical branch, War Department General Staff of the Army with rank of major, and he was chairman of the advisory committee on the History of the U.S. Army, 1955-59.

Taxes Cut

MALDEN--A tax reduction on personal and real estate property tax was approved by the Malden City Council.

The tax rate since 1962 has been $1.80 per $100 assessed valuation. This includes $1 for the general revenue fund; 20 cents for the park fund; and 60 cents to retire the 1955 general obligation bonds.

Mayor R. J. Dirks brought to the attention of the Council that the 60 cents used to retire the 1955 general obligation bonds could be cut in half and still retire the bonds in adequate time. He recommended that the rate be reduced from 60 cents to 30 cents.

The new tax rate on city personal and real estate will be $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation which will represent a tax reduction of one-sixth for the residents of Malden.

Million Dollar Suit Settled

MALDEN -- Three suits against Associated Natural Gas Co. totaling in excess of one million dollars, have been settled out of court. Amount of the settlement was not made public.

The suits were filed by Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Gaston of Malden as the result of burns received when an explosion and fire destroyed their home in Malden the night of Dec. 26, 1963. Dr. and Mrs. Gaston were burned critically and their 12-year - old son, Sammy lost his life.

In the petition, it was alleged that the explosion and resulting fire was caused by a gas main that leaked and permitted natural gas to accumulate in the Gaston dwelling. It was alleged that the gas percolated through the ground under a concrete street, concrete driveway and accumulated in large quantities within the foundation, walls and interior of the house without the knowledge or fault of the Gastons.

Judgment was sought on two counts. The first was $1,100,000 for injuries received allegedly rendering Dr. Gaston permanently and totally incapacitated from work and for medical expenses incurred.

On the second count Dr. Gaston sought judgment of $250,000 for the loss of the service and consortium of his wife, Geraldine Gaston, and for medical expenses incurred.

A third suit was filed on behalf of Mrs. Gaston.

Highway 25 Opening Will Be Marked

DEXTER -- The Dexter and Bloomfield Chambers of Commerce will co-ordinate efforts to hold a formal opening ceremony upon completion of U. S. hwy. 25 connecting the two cities.

The proposal was presented to the Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce Monday night by Joe Weber and Barney Miller of Dexter who were appointed co-chairmen of the project for their organization. Neither man offered any specific program, explaining that the Dexter Chamber of Commerce first wanted to learn if Bloomfield wanted to join in some sort of dedicatory or opening ceremony when the dual highway is ready for traffic.

No date has been set.

Suggestions ranging from a double ribbon-cutting ceremony with federal, state and highway dignitaries participating to holding caravans traveling the length of the new highway for a sight-seeing tour of the two towns.

A committee will be appointed by the Bloomfield organization to meet with the Dexter committee in the near future to work on a program.

The Democratic convention of 1924 cast 104 ballots before finally choosing John W. Davis as its candidate for the Presidency. As a result of the apparent deadlock the delegates were away from home longer than they had expected to be.

An old-timer recalls that at one point the Massachusetts chairman called his delegates together and said, "Gentlemen, we've got to make a choice. Either we pick a cheaper hotel or a more liberal candidate." — John J. McAleer

Foreign Affairs Give LBJ Trouble

These include:

1. The quest to harness the fearsome hydrogen bomb reaction for peacetime electricity production -- a quest which was pioneered at Los Alamos in a machine dubbed the "perhapsatron."

3. The "Rover Project" -- The dream of using nuclear reactors to propel spacecraft to distant planets, perhaps at speeds approaching the velocity of light, instead of using conventional chemical boosters.

3. "Plowshare" -- The Program aimed at using nuclear power in a range from manufacturing new elements and increasing the flow of natural gas deep underground to carving out canals and harbors on the earth's surface.

The two men who are most immediately responsible for keeping America's nuclear arsenal stocked with the very best in the weapons field are Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, director of the Los Alamos lab, and Dr. John Foster, director at Livermore, which is a branch of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley.

Bradbury was one of the developers of the original A-bombs in those hush-hush days when the Army took over an exclusive boys ranch school and built a secret city around it.

Bradbury says weapons still constitute at least 50 per cent of the lab's effort, and that "if the chips were down" -- and war was on or imminent -- his entire staff of 7,000 would be working full blast on the exclusive effort of producing even more powerful, efficient and sophisticated weapons.

From the start of discussions leading up to the signing of the limited nuclear test ban treaty --which outlaws all but underground testing--Bradbury was convinced that such a move offered the "possibility of taking the first real, even if small, step in the direction of the prevention of a nuclear war."

And he says "We've learned to test underground successfully."

The Atomic Energy Commission, in formal reports, has said that "significant progress" has been made in both offensive and defensive nuclear capability during the period of underground testing.

Foster was at first vigorously opposed to calling off atmospheric nuclear tests.

He argued, in testimony before congressional committees, that the elimination of atmospheric tests would disadvantage the United States more than Russia.

He says his fears have been eased somewhat by the relatively rapid pace of America's underground testing and by what he terms clear evidence that the laboratories have continued to maintain top people and vigorous programs.

Foster also says that the treaty --which stipulates that radioactivity from underground tests be kept within the territorial limits of the testing country--is "preventing us from proceeding as vigorously as we otherwise might" with canal-digging and kindred potential applications of the Plowshare program.

"We're doing our best," he said, "to 'clear up' nuclear explosives so that the radioactivity will be lessened.

"But, as for exploding, say, 100 kilotons -- the equivalent of 100,000 tons of TNT -- to produce craters for something like the Panama Canal, we can't do this today without violating the treaty--at least as it's being interpreted by the United States."

However, Foster and other AEC "Plowshare" experts make clear that even under strictest interpretation of the treaty, many valuable lessons can be learned from cratering experiments of more modest explosive yields.

They also point out that deep-underground Plowshare tests--the ones involving no cratering at all--offer rich potential for yeilding other peacetime benefits for man. These would include such possibilities as releasing oil from shale deposits difficult to tap by conventional techniques.

Ask Suggestions For Next M. U. President

COLUMBIA -- The board of curators of the University of Missouri has named a screening committee to make recommendations to the board for appointment of a new president to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellis when he retires as president of the University System in August of 1966.

Dr. Ellis reaches 65, the retirement age for administrative officers of the University, in July of 1966.

The committee consists of three directors, a representative of the alumni of the University, and a representative of the faculty. The curators on the committee are Robert Neill, St. Louis; Oliver B. Ferguson, Fredericktown, and William H. Billings, Kennett; Justice James A. Finch, Jr., of the Supreme Court of Missouri in Jefferson City; and Dr. A. G. Unklesbay, professor of geology at the University in Columbia.

Neill, president of the board, is chairman of the committee.

The committee had an organizational meeting in St. Louis and announced that it would receive suggestions from members of the faculty, alumni, and other friends of the University. It asks that suggestions be submitted in writing to the chairman or any other member of the University of Missouri screening committee.

Dr. Ellis was appointed the thirteenth President of the University of Missouri on April 16, 1955, after serving several months as acting president. He had been dean of the faculty of the College of Arts and Science since 1946. He joined the faculty in 1930 as assistant professor of history, and later advanced to professor of history, a title he still holds.

During his administration as president, the University has developed into a Statewide University system with major campuses at Rolla, Kansas City, and St. Louis as well as at Columbia, each of them under a chancellor responsible to the president. The four campuses had a combined total enrollment of more than 27,000 students this year.

President Ellis has served on many national and international committees and commissions. During 1963-64 he was president of the National Association of State Universities and Land - Grant Colleges, and 1958 - 62 was a member of the Board of Foreign Scholarships of the U. S. Department of State.

He is president of the board of directors of the Harry S. Truman Library Institute for National and International Affairs in Independence; secretary of the American Council on Education; president of the National Commission on Accrediting; a member of the President's Board of the William Rockhill Nelson Trust of Kansas City; a member of the executive committee of the Missouri School of Religion in Columbia; co-chairman of the Missouri Commission for Education Beyond the High School; and past president of the Missouri Association of Colleges and Universities. He also helped organize and served as president of the Mid - America Association of State Universities.

During World War II he served in the historical branch, War Department General Staff of the Army with rank of major, and he was chairman of the advisory committee on the History of the U.S. Army, 1955-59.

Taxes Cut

MALDEN--A tax reduction on personal and real estate property tax was approved by the Malden City Council.

The tax rate since 1962 has been $1.80 per $100 assessed valuation. This includes $1 for the general revenue fund; 20 cents for the park fund; and 60 cents to retire the 1955 general obligation bonds.

Mayor R. J. Dirks brought to the attention of the Council that the 60 cents used to retire the 1955 general obligation bonds could be cut in half and still retire the bonds in adequate time. He recommended that the rate be reduced from 60 cents to 30 cents.

The new tax rate on city personal and real estate will be $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation which will represent a tax reduction of one-sixth for the residents of Malden.

Million Dollar Suit Settled

MALDEN -- Three suits against Associated Natural Gas Co. totaling in excess of one million dollars, have been settled out of court. Amount of the settlement was not made public.

The suits were filed by Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Gaston of Malden as the result of burns received when an explosion and fire destroyed their home in Malden the night of Dec. 26, 1963. Dr. and Mrs. Gaston were burned critically and their 12-year - old son, Sammy lost his life.

In the petition, it was alleged that the explosion and resulting fire was caused by a gas main that leaked and permitted natural gas to accumulate in the Gaston dwelling. It was alleged that the gas percolated through the ground under a concrete street, concrete driveway and accumulated in large quantities within the foundation, walls and interior of the house without the knowledge or fault of the Gastons.

Judgment was sought on two counts. The first was $1,100,000 for injuries received allegedly rendering Dr. Gaston permanently and totally incapacitated from work and for medical expenses incurred.

On the second count Dr. Gaston sought judgment of $250,000 for the loss of the service and consortium of his wife, Geraldine Gaston, and for medical expenses incurred.

A third suit was filed on behalf of Mrs. Gaston.

Highway 25 Opening Will Be Marked

DEXTER -- The Dexter and Bloomfield Chambers of Commerce will co-ordinate efforts to hold a formal opening ceremony upon completion of U. S. hwy. 25 connecting the two cities.

The proposal was presented to the Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce Monday night by Joe Weber and Barney Miller of Dexter who were appointed co-chairmen of the project for their organization. Neither man offered any specific program, explaining that the Dexter Chamber of Commerce first wanted to learn if Bloomfield wanted to join in some sort of dedicatory or opening ceremony when the dual highway is ready for traffic.

No date has been set.

Suggestions ranging from a double ribbon-cutting ceremony with federal, state and highway dignitaries participating to holding caravans traveling the length of the new highway for a sight-seeing tour of the two towns.

A committee will be appointed by the Bloomfield organization to meet with the Dexter committee in the near future to work on a program.

The Democratic convention of 1924 cast 104 ballots before finally choosing John W. Davis as its candidate for the Presidency. As a result of the apparent deadlock the delegates were away from home longer than they had expected to be.

An old-timer recalls that at one point the Massachusetts chairman called his delegates together and said, "Gentlemen, we've got to make a choice. Either we pick a cheaper hotel or a more liberal candidate." — John J. McAleer

Reindict Trio For Extortion

MEMPHIS, Tenn. -- Three Southeast Missourians indicted in May for extortion have been reindicted by a Federal Grand Jury under different sections of the federal extortion laws.

The three men, Walter Richardson, Jr., 38, of Portageville president of Wil-Mar Advertising Co., of Sikeston; William R. McIntosh of Sikeston, 44, general manager of the firm; and Joe Dale Wilson, 32, of Sikeston, a Wil-Mar salesman, were indicted on a charge of using a telephone April 23 in Sikeston to call William Tanner, president of Pepper Sound Studios, Inc., in Memphis.

They were accused of demanding $5,000 to avoid bodily harm to Tanner's brother, Henry Faye Tanner, 37, a Pepper employe.

A spokesman for the Justice Department said the men were reindicted under a different section to assure their trial in Memphis, where the indictment contends the extortion took place.

Under the old indictment, the defendants could have been chosen to be tried in either Tennessee or Missouri.

Conviction under the new indictment carries a maximum penalty of a 15-year prison sentence and a $30,000 fine.

A screening committee, selected by the University of Missouri board of curators in Columbia, will make recommendations to the board for the appointment of a new president of the University to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellis, who will retire as president in August of 1966. Seated from left, are: Chairman Robert Neill, St. Louis, Mo., president of the board; Judge James A. Finch, Jr., Jefferson City, a justice of the supreme court of Missouri; standing from left: William H. Billings, Kennett; Oliver B. Ferguson, Fredericktown, vice president of the board; and Dr. A. G. Unklesbay, Columbia, professor and chairman of the department of geology, and chairman of the University system committee on retirement and staff benefits.

Lake Opens For Fishing

LILBOURN -- Fishermen flocked to New Madrid County's newest fishing spot this Thursday when Wolfe Lake opened at 5 p.m., for its first day for public use.

The lake, located on state route D one-and-one half miles west of Lilbourn, is stocked with 50,000 catfish and bream.

Louie Wolfe, owner of the lake, said that the 20-acre lake was first stocked three years ago and that no fish have been taken from the lake since then. Wolfe said that the fish have spawned twice since the lake was first stocked.

The lake will be open for fishing from 5 a.m. until 7 p.m. on a fee basis daily.

A dirt road leads to the lake. It will not be open on rainy days and fishermen will be required to leave the lake if rain appears imminent.

Boats will be allowed on the Lake, but no motors will be permitted.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My question may not be the type you care to answer in the paper. If you do reply in print please don't pull any punches. Tell me if you think I am a snob, or if I am justified in feeling that somebody is out of line.

I am a college student. When I returned from school last month the maid greeted me at the front door with a great big, "Welcome home." She gave me the "Welcome home" bit when I returned from school for Christmas vacation, too. It bothered me both times.

I somehow feel it is not the maid's place to welcome me home. Shouldn't she just say "Hello, nice to see you back" --or something equally impersonal?--MISS UN-E.Z.

Dear Un: Maybe you'd prefer, "Welcome home, Your Royal Highness?"

A person whose nose is as out of joint as yours should be pleased that anyone speaks to her at all.

Feel flattered that the maid would welcome you so warmly. It's a compliment--perhaps undeserved.

Dear Ann Landers: My letter will probably never get in the paper because I am not an 11-year-old unwed mother or a 70-year-old woman trying to find happiness with a man half her age.

What I want to know is this: Is it proper for a son and a daughter to split the cost of a wedding ring for their mother? Our parents were married during the depression and Pa couldn't afford anything but a simple band. (I think it is aluminum.) Over the years the band has worn thin and is now too small for her finger.

I know Ma would love a wedding band with a few diamonds in it but Pa can't get it for her. My brother and I could buy Ma a nice wedding ring but we don't know if it would be proper. How about it?--BIG QUANDARY

Dear Big Q.: It is not proper for children to buy their mother a wedding ring. I suggest two alternatives: (1) Buy your mother a dinner ring. (She'd probably be thrilled.) (2) Give Pa the money to buy Ma a new wedding ring and let the gift be from him.

Dear Ann Landers: What can a fellow do when he finds out his sister is a tramp and that their mother knows all about it bur refuses to say anything for fear the girl will move out of the house?

Ellie fell for this jerk at the naval base. For a year he slept at our house weekends, drank Dad's beer, used Ellie's car and never spent a dime on her. She even bought her own engagement ring. When his time was up he left town and said he'd send for her. That was the last she heard of him.

Now Ellie is mixed up with another bum who is using her the same way. In fact, this second bum is a buddy of the first bum. I'm sure Bum Number One tipped off Bum Number Two that Ellie is a real friendly girl with round heels and a soft head.

My mother says to keep my nose out of it because now she at least knows where Ellie is. And where is she? She's home --night after night, carrying on like a cheap trollop right under the family's nose. What can I do? --DISGUSTED BROTHER

Dear Brother: Probably nothing. But make one last effort to talk some sense into your sister's soft head. Tell her what it looks like from the male point of view. And let's hope she listens.

Do you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Portageville Attracts New Industry

PORTAGEVILLE --Optimistic businessmen are spearheading investment in the future of Portageville. An eight year gamble is now bearing fruit with the opening Friday, of the Portageville Manufacturing Company, employing 15 Portageville citizens.

The fact that Portageville had a building suitable for factory operation made this start possible. Credit for this valuable asset goes to the Portageville Development Corporation, an organization formed by Portageville businessmen, dedicated to economic growth of Portageville.

The factory building, owned by the Development Corporation, was built at an original cost of $30,000. A mortgage underwritten by business leaders now amounts to $7,500. The indebtedness is being paid off through profits from the Annual Soybean Festival. In return, stock is issued in the name of the Portageville Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber now holds controlling interest in the Portageville Development Corporation.

Corporation rules restrict use of the factory building of manufacturing operations. It is not to be used as a warehouse for storage, not as a retail store competing with Portageville business community.

Installation of air conditioning was required to make year-round occupancy possible. A unit was purchased for $6,800. Part of this cost is being defrayed by donations from the Kiwanis Dlub as a Community Building Project. Proceeds from tickets now being sold on a color Television set will be applied toward payment on the air conditioner.

Do you ever pause to listen to the voice of God? We hear it every day, wherever we may be.

In the whispering of tall trees . . . the music of rushing brooks . . . the songs of the birds . . . the gay laughter of happy children . . . we hear the voice of the Great Creator. Through his infinite grace a bird is enabled to serenade his mate, a tiny cricket chirps its faint refrain. God is the Bringer of all blessings to man and beast alike.

Let us give thanks to Him who has so enriched our lives. Open church doors beckon all over our land. Let us seek the House of the Lord, and enter in to pay Him homage. Here through prayer and humility, let us rededicate ourselves to His service and glorification.

A spokesman for the Justice Department said the men were reindicted under a different section to assure their trial in Memphis, where the indictment contends the extortion took place.

Under the old indictment, the defendants could have been chosen to be tried in either Tennessee or Missouri.

Conviction under the new indictment carries a maximum penalty of a 15-year prison sentence and a $30,000 fine.

A screening committee, selected by the University of Missouri board of curators in Columbia, will make recommendations to the board for the appointment of a new president of the University to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellis, who will retire as president in August of 1966. Seated from left, are: Chairman Robert Neill, St. Louis, Mo., president of the board; Judge James A. Finch, Jr., Jefferson City, a justice of the supreme court of Missouri; standing from left: William H. Billings, Kennett; Oliver B. Ferguson, Fredericktown, vice president of the board; and Dr. A. G. Unklesbay, Columbia, professor and chairman of the department of geology, and chairman of the University system committee on retirement and staff benefits.

Lake Opens For Fishing

LILBOURN -- Fishermen flocked to New Madrid County's newest fishing spot this Thursday when Wolfe Lake opened at 5 p.m., for its first day for public use.

The lake, located on state route D one-and-one half miles west of Lilbourn, is stocked with 50,000 catfish and bream.

Louie Wolfe, owner of the lake, said that the 20-acre lake was first stocked three years ago and that no fish have been taken from the lake since then. Wolfe said that the fish have spawned twice since the lake was first stocked.

The lake will be open for fishing from 5 a.m. until 7 p.m. on a fee basis daily.

A dirt road leads to the lake. It will not be open on rainy days and fishermen will be required to leave the lake if rain appears imminent.

Boats will be allowed on the Lake, but no motors will be permitted.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My question may not be the type you care to answer in the paper. If you do reply in print please don't pull any punches. Tell me if you think I am a snob, or if I am justified in feeling that somebody is out of line.

I am a college student. When I returned from school last month the maid greeted me at the front door with a great big, "Welcome home." She gave me the "Welcome home" bit when I returned from school for Christmas vacation, too. It bothered me both times.

I somehow feel it is not the maid's place to welcome me home. Shouldn't she just say "Hello, nice to see you back" --or something equally impersonal?--MISS UN-E.Z.

Dear Un: Maybe you'd prefer, "Welcome home, Your Royal Highness?"

A person whose nose is as out of joint as yours should be pleased that anyone speaks to her at all.

Feel flattered that the maid would welcome you so warmly. It's a compliment--perhaps undeserved.

Dear Ann Landers: My letter will probably never get in the paper because I am not an 11-year-old unwed mother or a 70-year-old woman trying to find happiness with a man half her age.

What I want to know is this: Is it proper for a son and a daughter to split the cost of a wedding ring for their mother? Our parents were married during the depression and Pa couldn't afford anything but a simple band. (I think it is aluminum.) Over the years the band has worn thin and is now too small for her finger.

I know Ma would love a wedding band with a few diamonds in it but Pa can't get it for her. My brother and I could buy Ma a nice wedding ring but we don't know if it would be proper. How about it?--BIG QUANDARY

Dear Big Q.: It is not proper for children to buy their mother a wedding ring. I suggest two alternatives: (1) Buy your mother a dinner ring. (She'd probably be thrilled.) (2) Give Pa the money to buy Ma a new wedding ring and let the gift be from him.

Dear Ann Landers: What can a fellow do when he finds out his sister is a tramp and that their mother knows all about it bur refuses to say anything for fear the girl will move out of the house?

Ellie fell for this jerk at the naval base. For a year he slept at our house weekends, drank Dad's beer, used Ellie's car and never spent a dime on her. She even bought her own engagement ring. When his time was up he left town and said he'd send for her. That was the last she heard of him.

Now Ellie is mixed up with another bum who is using her the same way. In fact, this second bum is a buddy of the first bum. I'm sure Bum Number One tipped off Bum Number Two that Ellie is a real friendly girl with round heels and a soft head.

My mother says to keep my nose out of it because now she at least knows where Ellie is. And where is she? She's home --night after night, carrying on like a cheap trollop right under the family's nose. What can I do? --DISGUSTED BROTHER

Dear Brother: Probably nothing. But make one last effort to talk some sense into your sister's soft head. Tell her what it looks like from the male point of view. And let's hope she listens.

Do you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Portageville Attracts New Industry

PORTAGEVILLE --Optimistic businessmen are spearheading investment in the future of Portageville. An eight year gamble is now bearing fruit with the opening Friday, of the Portageville Manufacturing Company, employing 15 Portageville citizens.

The fact that Portageville had a building suitable for factory operation made this start possible. Credit for this valuable asset goes to the Portageville Development Corporation, an organization formed by Portageville businessmen, dedicated to economic growth of Portageville.

The factory building, owned by the Development Corporation, was built at an original cost of $30,000. A mortgage underwritten by business leaders now amounts to $7,500. The indebtedness is being paid off through profits from the Annual Soybean Festival. In return, stock is issued in the name of the Portageville Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber now holds controlling interest in the Portageville Development Corporation.

Corporation rules restrict use of the factory building of manufacturing operations. It is not to be used as a warehouse for storage, not as a retail store competing with Portageville business community.

Installation of air conditioning was required to make year-round occupancy possible. A unit was purchased for $6,800. Part of this cost is being defrayed by donations from the Kiwanis Dlub as a Community Building Project. Proceeds from tickets now being sold on a color Television set will be applied toward payment on the air conditioner.

Do you ever pause to listen to the voice of God? We hear it every day, wherever we may be.
In the whispering of tall trees . . . the music of rushing brooks . . . the songs of the birds . . . the gay laughter of happy children . . . we hear the voice of the Great Creator. Through his infinite grace a bird is enabled to serenade his mate, a tiny cricket chirps its faint refrain. God is the Bringer of all blessings to man and beast alike.
Let us give thanks to Him who has so enriched our lives. Open church doors beckon all over our land. Let us seek the House of the Lord, and enter in to pay Him homage. Here through prayer and humility, let us rededicate ourselves to His service and glorification.

Today's Spanish Lesson

"Hubo" is the past tense of "Hay" and it means There was, there were. By simply using the word "no" in front of these "Keys", you can express "no there was not" and "no there were not", etc.

1. A) There were ten men at the dinner. B) Hubo diez hombres en la cena. C) OO-bo/ de-ACE /om-BRAYS/ N/lah/ SAY-nah.

2. A) There were not ten men at the dinner. B) No hubo diez hombres en la cena. C) no/ OO-bo/ de-ACE/ om-BRAYS/ N/lah/SAY-nah.

3. A) There was enough money to eat. B) Hubo bastante dinero para comer. C) OO-bo/ bahs-TAHN-tay/ de-NAIR-oh/ PAH-rah/co-MARE.

The value of this "Key" cannot be over looked. The present tense "Hay" (I) and the past tense "Hubo" (OO-bo) form an easy invasion into the Spanish language.

"Hay" (I) -- There is, there are.

"No hay" (no/I) -- No, there is not. No, there are not.

"Hubo" (OO-bo)-- There was, there were.

"No hubo" (no/OO-bo)--No, there was not. No, there were not.

Remember the "H" is always silent in Spanish, i. e. Hotel--o-TELL.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

Yield yourselves to God as men who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments of righteousness. (Romans 6:13, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, Thou hast seen much in me that has been displeasing to Thee and harmful to others. I ask forgiveness. Take me into Thine own hands of love to cleanse and prepare me as Thou seest best for Thy great service. In Jesus' name I ask. Amen.

The classic statement of unavailability is the telegram that William Tecumseh Sherman sent to the Republican convention of 1884. The wire stated firmly: "I will not accept if nominated and will not serve if elected." But as a postscript to the Sherman telegram it deserves to be noted that the convention was not seriously considering nominating him for the Presidency. — Malcolm Moos and Stephen Hess

Dear Melvin:

The Council and Administration of the City of Sikeston, commends you for constructing the attractive fence in front of your salvage car lot.

We are sincerely appreciative since you made this effort to protect the general public from another junk car eyesore entirely without official 'nudging' so to speak on our part.

To a community - minded man, we again say 'thanks'!

ELKHORN, Neb. -- Captain Hartsill R. Burchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Burchfield of Matthews, Mo., has been graduated from the University of Omaha (Neb.), with a B. G. E. degree in business administration and economics.

Captain Burchfield completed his college work under Operation Bootstrap, an Air Force education program assistance program.

The Matthews High School graduate, has also attended Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and the University of Maryland's European Division. He was commissioned upon completion of Officer Candidate School.

His wife, Grace, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCoy of Matthews.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK.,--Today, and for the next two Fridays, Blytheville Air Force Base will act as host for over 200 pre-school children from Missouri.

Ranging between the ages of 5-6 years old, the youngsters are visiting Air Force bases throughout the United States in conjunction with President Johnson's program "Operation Head Start".

The first group from Missouri to visit the installation here arrived last Friday.

Accompanied by several adult leaders, the youngsters were given a first hand view of various sections on base including the flight line area, the sentry dog section and the fire department.

Twin views of the giant B-52 Strategic Air Command bombers and the KC-135 Stratotankers seemed to highlight the youngsters visit.

The group was conducted on a walk-around tour of the bomber, and they were able to walk-through the Stratotaker.

Prior to their departure, the kindergarten grads were taken to the base dining hall and treated to a meal consisting of fried fish, pizza pie, milk and ice cream.

One cannibal, while eating dinner, complained to his companion, "I hate my mother-in-law."

"So all right, why don't you just eat the vegetables?" his friend replied.

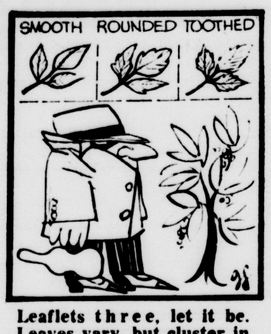
Rub Out Poison Ivy

Until recent years poison ivy, as an unwelcome guest on your property, was sad, sad news. Getting rid of it included garbing yourself with a costume as close to a deep sea diver's as possible, grubbing out the plants, roots and all, then trying to figure out what to do with the infected gloves and clothing to get rid of the long-lasting oils from the plant. Now it's different and here's how:



Leaflets three, let it be. Leaves vary, but cluster in threes. Keep your distance.

June and July are best months to attack poison ivy and oak. Use chemical sprays.

Formulas containing 2,4-D or 2,4,5-T or amitrole or ammonium sulfamate work best.

Two or more applications are needed to assure success. Follow directions carefully.

Who's taking the step that could step up employment?

"Who is doing something practical—in the American tradition of self-help and local action—to create more job opportunities and to train people for existing job opportunities?"

Answer: American private enterprise—and individual cities and towns across the country. And now industry is taking a new step to boost employment. The National Association of Manufacturers has launched a major, nation-wide program called STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems). STEP is searching America to find proven, successful ways to find more jobs and to fit people for available jobs. Its findings appear as verified case studies which are offered to companies and communities without charge.

For more information, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

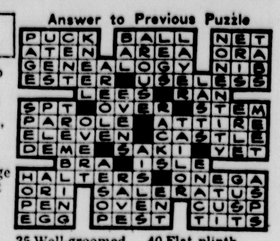
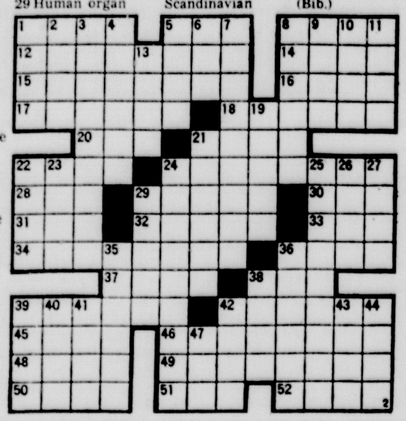
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Today's Spanish Lesson

"Hubo" is the past tense of "Hay" and it means There was, there were. By simply using the word "no" in front of these "Keys", you can express "no there was not" and "no there were not", etc.

1. A) There were ten men at the dinner. B) Hubo diez hombres en la cena. C) OO-bo/ de-ACE /om-BRAYS/ N/lah/ SAY-nah.

2. A) There were not ten men at the dinner. B) No hubo diez hombres en la cena. C) no/ OO-bo/ de-ACE/ om-BRAYS/ N/lah/SAY-nah.

3. A) There was enough money to eat. B) Hubo bastante dinero para comer. C) OO-bo/ bahs-TAHN-tay/ de-NAIR-oh/ PAH-rah/co-MARE.

The value of this "Key" cannot be over looked. The present tense "Hay" (I) and the past tense "Hubo" (OO-bo) form an easy invasion into the Spanish language.

"Hay" (I) -- There is, there are.

"No hay" (no/I) -- No, there is not. No, there are not.

"Hubo" (OO-bo)-- There was, there were.

"No hubo" (no/OO-bo)--No, there was not. No, there were not.

Remember the "H" is always silent in Spanish, i. e. Hotel--o-TELL.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

Yield yourselves to God as men who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments of righteousness. (Romans 6:13, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, Thou hast seen much in me that has been displeasing to Thee and harmful to others. I ask forgiveness. Take me into Thine own hands of love to cleanse and prepare me as Thou seest best for Thy great service. In Jesus' name I ask. Amen.

The classic statement of unavailability is the telegram that William Tecumseh Sherman sent to the Republican convention of 1884. The wire stated firmly: "I will not accept if nominated and will not serve if elected." But as a postscript to the Sherman telegram it deserves to be noted that the convention was not seriously considering nominating him for the Presidency. — Malcolm Moos and Stephen Hess

ELKHORN, Neb. -- Captain Hartsill R. Burchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Burchfield of Matthews, Mo., has been graduated from the University of Omaha (Neb.), with a B. G. E. degree in business administration and economics.

Captain Burchfield completed his college work under Operation Bootstrap, an Air Force education program assistance program.

The Matthews High School graduate, has also attended Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and the University of Maryland's European Division. He was commissioned upon completion of Officer Candidate School.

His wife, Grace, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCoy of Matthews.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- Today, and for the next two Fridays, Blytheville Air Force Base will act as host for over 200 pre-school children from Missouri.

Ranging between the ages of 5-6 years old, the youngsters are visiting Air Force bases throughout the United States in conjunction with President Johnson's program "Operation Head Start".

The first group from Missouri to visit the installation here arrived last Friday.

Accompanied by several adult leaders, the youngsters were given a first hand view of various sections on base including the flight line area, the sentry dog section and the fire department.

Twin views of the giant B-52 Strategic Air Command bombers and the KC-135 Stratotankers seemed to highlight the youngsters visit.

The group was conducted on a walk-around tour of the bomber, and they were able to walk-through the Stratotaker.

Prior to their departure, the kindergarten grads were taken to the base dining hall and treated to a meal consisting of fried fish, pizza pie, milk and ice cream.

One cannibal, while eating dinner, complained to his companion, "I hate my mother-in-law."

"So all right, why don't you just eat the vegetables?" his friend replied.

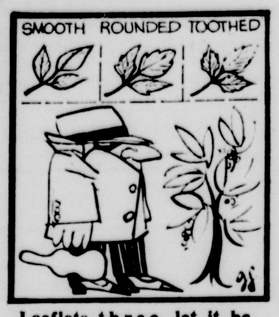
Rub Out Poison Ivy

Until recent years poison ivy, as an unwelcome guest on your property, was sad, sad news. Getting rid of it included garbing yourself with a costume as close to a deep sea diver's as possible, grubbing out the plants, roots and all, then trying to figure out what to do with the infected gloves and clothing to get rid of the long-lasting oils from the plant. Now it's different and here's how:



Leaflets three, let it be. Leaves vary, but cluster in threes. Keep your distance.

June and July are best months to attack poison ivy and oak. Use chemical sprays.

Formulas containing 2,4-D or 2,4,5-T or amitrole or ammonium sulfamate work best.

Two or more applications are needed to assure success. Follow directions carefully.

Who's taking the step that could step up employment?

"Who is doing something practical—in the American tradition of self-help and local action—to create more job opportunities and to train people for existing job opportunities?"

Answer: American private enterprise—and individual cities and towns across the country. And now industry is taking a new step to boost employment. The National Association of Manufacturers has launched a major, nation-wide program called STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems). STEP is searching America to find proven, successful ways to find more jobs and to fit people for available jobs. Its findings appear as verified case studies which are offered to companies and communities without charge.

PRAYER REQUESTS

FOR EVERY time Thou has denied
My prayer request, I thank Thee, Lord,
For often I saw within a wide
And understanding afterward
That what I deeply longed for would
Have meant a gray and grievous road.
And, Lord, though one denied request
Still seems a bright and gloried thing,
Teach me that Thy denial was best,
And help me on my journeying
To know with faith-deep certainty
Thy will is happiest for me!

Returning from a holiday week-end, with my wife at the wheel, we attempted to overtake a slow moving vehicle. A car was approaching from the other direction, and my wife jammed on the brake, but not before she hit the bumper of the car ahead.

The driver bolted from the car, and I expected quite a scene. But the fellow was surprisingly calm; he just stood there, hands on hips, staring at my horror-stricken wife. "I'm sorry about your bumper," she said, "What can I give you?"

The man just shook his head and started back to his car. "Nothing, lady," he sighed. "Just a head start."
